CREATING AN ARMY WITH THE MORTEM ET GLORIAM ARMY LISTS

Use the army lists to create your own customised armies using the Mortem et Gloriam Army Builder.

There are few general rules to follow:

1. An army must have at least 2 generals and can have no more than 4.
2. You must take at least the minimum of any troops noted and may not go beyond the maximum of any.
3. No army may have more than two generals who are Talented or better.
4. Unless specified otherwise, all elements in a UG must be classified identically. Unless specified otherwise, if an optional characteristic is taken, it must be taken by all the elements in the UG for which that optional characteristic is available.
5. Any UGs can be downgraded by one quality grade and/or by one shooting skill (Skilled to Experienced or Experienced to Unskilled) representing less strong, tired, or understrength troops. If any bases are downgraded all in the UG must be downgraded. So Average-Experienced skirmishers can always be downgraded to Poor-Unskilled.
6. Points are shown for troops with all mandatory characteristics applied. Points have been rounded to the nearest whole number. If quality or shooting skill is downgraded, then the points (including the points for any optional characteristics) will need to be adjusted.
7. An army entirely of Cavalry, Chariots, Camelry or Infantry with the Dismountable characteristic may choose the No Camp option.

Where allies are allowed, they must conform to the following rules:

1. An ally must be a minimum of 2 and a maximum of 4 UGs.
2. They must take enough UGs to get them to at least 50% of the minimums in the list being used.
3. They can thereafter take any troops up to the maximum to create the rest of the allied contingent.
4. Unless specified in the notes, the general must be the same type as the army commander in their own army's list but cannot be legendary.

Usually this results in 1-3 UGs being compulsory and you having full flexibility on the rest.

Where an internal ally is allowed, and no contingent is specified they must conform to the following rules:

1. Each internal ally must be a minimum of 2 and a maximum of 4 UGs.
2. The total number of troops taken of each type in the entire army must not exceed the maxima for that troop type.
3. They must take enough UGs to get them to at least 50% of the minimums in the list if there is enough allowance for a UG after the core army itself has taken the minimum. For example: An army has 4-12 cavalry (UG size 4,6) and 18-32 spearmen (UG size 6,8,9) as compulsory troops with 2 internal allies. The core army must take 4 cavalry and at least 18 spearmen. The first ally must take 4 cavalry and at least 9 spearmen. The second ally must take 4 cavalry but cannot take the 9 spearmen as this would exceed the 32 spearmen limit for the army.

4. If a list requires a proportion of a troop type to be upgraded or regraded, then the army as a whole must comply with this requirement. Internal allies do not have to comply these requirements. For example: $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ of Turcomans must be upgraded from Experienced to Skilled shooting. An internal ally might have all Experienced as long as the army as a whole has $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ Skilled.
5. They can thereafter take any troops up to the maximum to create the rest of the allied contingent.

Usually this results in 1-3 UGs being compulsory and you having full flexibility on the rest.

As a courtesy to your opponent when you deploy your troops, you should describe each UG fully; type, training, quality, protection, melee weaponry, shooting skill and weaponry and characteristics. You should also explain how any unusual troop types in your army function and any special rules including Stakes, Caltrops, Barricades and Obstacles and troop types such as Battle Wagons.

The easiest way to calculate points is to use the downloadable on-line army builder at www.mortem-et-gloriam.co.uk. Use this and all you do is use drop downs for the troop classifications and it does all the work for you. For those who prefer pen and paper, or who want to doodle some approximate designs before loading an army up, we have provided the points values with the lists. If a discrepancy exists in the points values between these lists and the army builder, then the army builder has the correct value.

FRIENDLY AND SCENARIO GAMES

Feel free to vary the troop classifications for friendly and scenario games. An interesting aspect of scenario games can be to see what the effect is from representing troops in a different manner.

HISTORICAL INTRODUCTION

In the 9th century BCE Phoenician refugees from Tyre founded a city on the coast of what is now Tunisia. They called the city Qrt hdst or “New City”, but it became known as Karchedon to the Greeks and Carthago to the Romans. Gradually Carthage assumed the role of protector of the Phoenician colonies in the western Mediterranean and founded colonies of her own. Between 545 and 535 BCE Carthaginian expeditions conquered colonies in Sicily and Sardinia. They then came into contact with the Greek colonies in Italy. They lost a sea battle in alliance with the Etruscans at Alalia off Corsica in 535 BCE against the Greeks.

In Sicily the main rival to the Carthaginians was the Greek city of Syracuse. At the battle of Himera in 480 BCE the Carthaginian army was defeated by the tyrant Gelon. It was not until 410 BCE that a Carthaginian invasion under Himilco and Hannibal achieved success, recapturing much of the island. Ongoing wars saw the Carthaginians hold much of the west of the island. In 341 BCE they almost captured Syracuse but were heavily defeated at the battle of Crimmissus. In 311 BCE the Carthaginians again besieged Syracuse, but Agathocles, tyrant of Syracuse, landed an army in North Africa, defeated a Carthaginian army under Hanno and besieged Carthage. Eventually a Carthaginian victory forced Agathocles to retreat to Sicily.

In 278 BCE Syracuse made an alliance with Pyrrhus of Epirus but he was unable to defeat the Carthaginians and retired from Sicily in 276 BCE. Pyrrhus was defeated by the Romans who by 265 BCE controlled the entire Italian peninsula. Between 264 and 241 BCE the Romans and Carthaginians fought for control of Sicily in the First Punic War. Battles were fought on both land and sea as both powers sent expeditionary forces to the island. At the end of the war the Carthaginians were forced to sue for peace and evacuated most of the island. By 238 BCE the Romans had also seized control of Sardinia.

The defeat in the First Punic War led to a mercenary revolt against the Carthaginians. A savage war, known as the “Truceless War” was fought for four years until the mercenaries were defeated. The Carthaginians turned their attention to expanding into Spain. By 221 BCE they had conquered and consolidated control of much of Spain south of the Tagus and Ebro rivers. In 219 BCE Hannibal captured the port of Saguntum, an ally of Rome, and triggered the Second Punic War.

Leaving Hasdrubal with an army to defend Spain, Hannibal crossed the Alps with a force including 30 to 40 elephants and invaded Italy. He inflicted three crushing defeats on the Romans at the Trebbia River (218 BCE), Lake Trasimene (217 BCE) and Cannae (216 BCE). Despite the defection of many of their Italian allies and huge losses, the Romans fought on and inflicted a stalemate on Hannibal who lacked reinforcements. Meanwhile the Romans fought back in Spain gradually taking territory. In 212 BCE the Romans incited a Numidian king in North Africa to revolt against the Carthaginians. A Numidian prince, Massinissa, helped the Carthaginians to defeat the revolt and joined the Carthaginians in Spain.

The Carthaginians continued to lose ground in Spain and Hasdrubal attempted to join Hannibal in Italy. At the Battle of the Metaurus River the Carthaginians were defeated and Hasdrubal was killed. The remaining Carthaginians in Spain were finally defeated by Scipio at Ilipa in 206 BCE. In 204 BCE the Romans landed in North Africa. In 203 BCE Hannibal was recalled from Italy. At the Battle of Zama in 202 BCE Scipio defeated Hannibal. Carthage sued for peace.

The Romans imposed harsh terms leaving Carthage with only its possessions in Africa, losing its fleet and elephants and having to pay a heavy annual tribute. In 149 BCE the Romans engineered the Third Punic War in which Carthage was besieged. In 146 BCE Carthage was captured, sacked and destroyed.

At the end of the First Punic War Rome controlled most of Sicily except for the territories of Syracuse. At the start of the Second Punic War Syracuse was allied to Rome. After the Roman defeat at Cannae, the new tyrant Hieronymus accepted Carthaginian support. The Romans besieged Syracuse from 214 BCE and captured it in 212 BCE. Rome controlled Sicily for the next 680 years.

The Roman conquest of Hispania (Spain) started with the capture of the Carthaginian territories in 206 BCE. and was only finally completed by Augustus in 19 BCE. The Spanish interior was rich in gold and silver deposits. Spain was a complex network of tribes and the Romans were regularly at war, fighting battles that were “numerous rather than memorable”. In 198 BCE the Romans created two provinces, Hispania Citerior and Hispania Ulterior with capitals at Tarraco (Tarragona) and Cordoba (Córdoba) respectively.

The Spanish tribes consisted of three main groupings, the Celtiberians, the Lusitanians and the Iberians. The Celtiberians were of Celtic stock, had invaded Spain from France and were settled mostly in the centre of the peninsular. The Lusitanians occupied an area around central Portugal and the Tagus valley. Various Iberian tribes occupied the remaining areas along with the Carthaginian and Greek cities along the coast.

Despite earlier defeats at the hands of the Romans, by the 150s BCE both the Celtiberians and Lusitanians were fighting against the Romans. In the Lusitanian War a leader Viriathus emerged. Throughout the 140s he inflicted a series of defeats on the Romans, even forcing the Roman commander Q. Fabius Maximus Servilianus to agree to him becoming a friend and ally of the Roman people. The new commander Q. Servilius Caepio undermined this arrangement and war was resumed. Viriathus was assassinated and, without his leadership, the Lusitanians were soon pacified.

Two wars were fought against the Celtiberians from 153 to 151 BCE and from 143 to 133 BCE. The latter known as the Numantine War was renowned for the siege of Numantia where P. Cornelius Scipio Aemilianus eventually captured the city.

The Romans fought a further war against the Lusitanians from 109 BCE. In 104 BCE the German Cimbri in Gaul invaded Spain. They devastated many districts but were defeated by the Celtiberians. M. Marius, possibly the younger brother of the Consul, fought the Lusitanians until 102 BCE with assistance from a Celtiberian tribe.

In North Africa, a big winner from the Second Punic War was Massinissa who had switched sides before Zama. Numidia was greatly expanded at the expense of the Carthaginians and he ruled until 148 BCE. He was succeeded by his son Micipsa. When Micipsa died in 118 BCE, he was succeeded jointly by his two sons Hiempsal I and Adherbal and Masinissa's illegitimate grandson, Jugurtha. Jugurtha had Hiempsal killed, which led to open war with Adherbal. Adherbal appealed to the Romans who intervened. This led to the Jugurthine war between Rome and Numidia. The Numidians inflicted a couple of defeats on Roman forces and the war, mired in Roman politics, dragged on until L. Cornelius Sulla captured Jugurtha with help from Bocchus of Mauretania.

Meanwhile Sicily had been turned by rich Roman landowners into large grain producing farms to feed Rome. The farms, Latifundia, used huge numbers of slaves gathered by Rome from her provincial wars. The First Servile War of 135 to 132 BCE was an unsuccessful rebellion of slaves against the Roman Republic. It was led by Eunus, a former slave claiming to be a prophet, and Cleon, a Cilician who became Eunus's military commander. After some minor battles won by the slaves, a larger Roman army arrived in Sicily and defeated the rebels. The Second Servile War lasted from 104 until 100 BCE. The Consul Gaius Marius was recruiting for his war against the Cimbri in Cisalpine Gaul. Troops from Rome's Italian Allies were not supplied due to the claim that contracted Roman tax collectors had enslaved Italians unable to pay their debts. Marius decreed that any allied/friendly Italian should be released if they were in Roman slavery. Around 800 Italian slaves were released from Sicily, frustrating many non-Italians who thought they would be released as well, and many of these abandoned their masters, incorrectly believing themselves to have been freed. A rebellion broke out when they were ordered back to servitude by the Governor. A slave by the name of Salvius was elected leader of this rebellion. He assumed the name Tryphon, from Diodotus Tryphon, a Seleucid ruler. The Roman consul Manius Aquillius quelled the revolt only after great effort.

In Spain, a civil war was fought between Q. Sertorius in coalition with native tribes and the regime of Sulla from 80 to 72 BCE. Sertorius had arrived to govern Spain in 82 BCE. The forces of Sulla evicted him but disaffected Lusitanians invited him to return. For five years, allied to Lusitanians and Celtiberian tribes he wore down the armies of Sulla including those sent under the command of Pompey. In 75 BCE the armies of Pompey and Q. Caecilius Metellus combined and defeated Sertorius. In 72 BCE Sertorius was assassinated by M. Perperna who was ambushed and captured by Pompey.

During the civil war between Caesar and the Pompeian forces, both Spain and Numidia became a battleground. Caesar confronted the Pompeian legions in Spain in 49 BCE at the battle of Ilerda in north eastern Spain. In 45 BCE he had to return to Spain to defeat Gnaeus Pompeus, the son of Pompey, at the battle of Munda. Four battles were fought in Africa. The first two in 49 BCE were between C. Scribonius Curio and an alliance of Pompeians and King Juba of Numidia. Although victorious at Utica, Curio was decisively defeated and killed at the battle of the Bagradas river. The latter two were in 46 BCE between Julius Caesar and Pompeian (strictly Optimate) forces led by T. Labienus and Q. Caecilius Metellus Scipio.

The conquest of Spain was completed in the Cantabrian wars from 29 to 19 BCE fought against the Cantabrians and Astures of northern Hispania. Augustus took command in the fourth year of the war and took credit for the ultimate victory although the victorious Romans forces were led by Publius Carusius.

MAXIMUS ARMY LISTS

CALCULATING POINTS

Army points are calculated as follows:

GENERALS - MAXIMUS

Type of general	Army Commander		Sub-general		Ally general
	Professional	Instinctive	Professional	Instinctive	Professional	Instinctive
Legendary	1600	1400	n/a	n/a	800	700
Talented	1100	900	850	700	650	600
Competent	700	550	600	450	300	250
Mediocre	250	0	400	250	100	50

CAMPS

Type of camp	Poor	Average	Superior
Unfortified	108	180	252
Fortified	216	360	504
Flexible	180	300	420
Mobile	126	210	294
No camp	378	N/A	N/A

A flexible camp is deployed as a fortified camp when defending and a mobile camp when invading.
No camp deploys a poor mobile camp when defending and no camp at all when invading.

UGs

For each UG multiply the cost shown in the list (adjusting for any optional characteristics) by the number of bases.

NOTES

1. Points values for skirmishers in Magna and Pacto are greater than in Maximus as SuGs shoot at full effect with only two ranks.
2. For further details on how points are calculated visit the Mortem et Gloriam website.

LIBYAN

650 BCE TO 202 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Libyan tribes which had existed in Ancient Egyptian times continued to occupy the southern portion of Cyrenaica even after the arrival of the Greeks. These tribes included the Makai (Macaе), Auschisae, Auses, Maxyes, Machlyes and the Abystae. A further Libyan civilization, the Garamantes occupied the most habitable region of the Sahara, the Wadis el-Agial and Sciati and the oases from Murzuk to Zuila. The Romans led two expeditions against the Garamantes. In 202 CE, Septimius Severus captured the capital city of Garama.

TROOP NOTES

Chariots: The Libyans used four horse chariots. The Asbystae were distinguished above the other Libyan tribes for their skill.
Warriors: Libyan warriors were primarily javelinmen that carried shields. The Makai are recorded using Ostrich skin shields.

SICEL

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Sicels, Sicani and Elymoi were the inhabitants of Sicily prior to the Greeks and Carthaginians. With the arrival of the Greeks and Carthaginians they were pushed into the hinterland. It is possible that Morgantina was a Sicel city. In the middle of the 5th century BCE a Sicel leader, Ducetius, was able to organise a Sicel state to oppose Syracuse. He was defeated in 450 BCE. Sicels were present at the Athenian siege of Syracuse, having revolted from Syracusan rule.

TROOP NOTES

Sicel warriors may have fought in a similar style to the hill tribes of Italy. As they absorbed Greek culture, some may have fought as hoplites.

SICILIOT GREEK

550 TO 241 BCE

HISTORICAL NOTES

Sicily was colonised by the Greeks from the 8th century BCE. The most important colony was Syracuse, but other colonies included Gela, Akragas, Selinunte, Himera, Kamarina and Zancle. As the Greek and Phoenician communities grew more populous, they pushed the existing Sicels into the centre of the island. Carthage dominated the western part of the island and conflict between the Carthaginians and Greeks became inevitable. The constant warfare eventually opened the door to the Romans leading to the First Punic War. By the end of the war, all the Greek cities except Syracuse were in Roman hands. Carthaginian successes in the Second Punic War encouraged the cities to revolt. Rome brutally suppressed the rebellions. This list excludes Syracusan armies from 411 BCE.

TROOP NOTES

The Greeks used the hoplite style of warfare throughout this period.

EARLY CARTHAGINIAN

550 TO 236 BCE

HISTORICAL NOTES

Carthage, a Phoenician colony on the north African coast near modern Tunis, established a pre-eminent position in controlling trade in the western Mediterranean. By 509 BCE Carthage controlled Sardinia and the western half of Sicily. This brought Carthage into conflict with the Greeks of Sicily. In 480 Gelo, tyrant of Syracuse, attempted to unite the island under his rule. The Carthaginians sent an army under Hamilcar but were defeated in the battle of Himera. In 409 Hannibal Mago captured Selinus and Himera but failed in capturing Syracuse. A second expedition in 405 ended unsuccessfully. In 398 Dionysius, tyrant of Syracuse, attacked the Carthaginian city of Motya. Himilco responded decisively capturing Messina and besieging Syracuse until plague broke out in the Carthaginian army. Carthage experienced further successes and setbacks in 387. By 340, Carthage had been pushed entirely into the southwest corner of the island. In 311, Agathocles, the tyrant of Syracuse, invaded the last Carthaginian holdings besieging Akragas. In 310 a Carthaginian army led by Hamilcar had tremendous success and besieged Syracuse. To remove the threat to Syracuse, Agathocles led an invasion of mainland Africa which resulted in a recall of the Carthaginian forces. Although Agathocles' army was eventually defeated, he escaped back to Syracuse and negotiated a peace treaty.

In 278 Pyrrhus invaded Sicily because of requests from the Greek cities. Pyrrhus captured Panormus and Eryx. He refused a Carthaginian offer to surrender everything in Sicily except for Lilybaeum. Pyrrhus however lost interest in Sicily and returned to Italy.

The Carthaginians were faced with the increasing power of the Romans. After the First Punic War, 264 to 241, they lost control of Sicily, Sardinia, and Corsica. A huge mercenary revolt after the defeat led to the Truceless War. It took four years for the mercenaries to be defeated.

TROOP NOTES

Chariots: The Phoenicians who founded Carthage may have brought the tradition of chariot warfare with them. They appear to have been four horse chariots with a crew of 2, a driver and a warrior with bow and spears.

Cavalry: The Carthaginians had some native cavalry, probably drawn from an aristocratic elite. They also recruited cavalry from the territories they controlled or were allied with including Etruscans, Campanians and Greeks.

Sacred Band: The Carthaginians organised a "sacred band" of 2,500 warriors recruited among the wealthy families.

African infantry: Carthage and her colonies would raise a Citizen militia. These were supplemented by "contracted" warriors from the settled areas along the North African coast. The Carthaginians appear to have preferred Greek mercenary hoplites when available.

Spanish infantry: Carthage also recruited Spanish infantry.

Gallic Infantry: Gallic infantry are first recorded in Punic armies in 348 BCE

Numidians: From the middle of the 4th century B.C. onwards Numidian cavalry were recruited in increasing numbers.

SARDINIAN

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Sardinians resisted Carthaginian attempts to conquer the island from the 6th century BCE onwards. The south and central western part of the island was seized by the Carthaginians in 510 BCE. In 238 BCE Rome took advantage of a rebellion of Carthaginian mercenaries to seize the island. It took them many years to pacify the island. A rebellion in 215 BCE was supported by the Carthaginians during the Second Punic War.

TROOP NOTES

Sardinian warriors may have fought in a similar style to other Italian hill tribes. A proportion appear to have fought as archers. Generals may have been mounted in chariots.

HISTORICAL ENEMIES

SARDINIAN TRIBES

The three main tribal groupings were (north to south) the Corsi, Balares and Ilienses. Corsi tribes were the Lestrigoni and Longonensi. Balares tribes include the Coracenses; Giddilitani; Lucidonenses and Turritani. Tribes of the Ilienses include Aechilenenses; Aesaronenses; Carenses; Ceistani; Corpicenses; Cunusitani; Neapolitani; Noritani; Rucensi; Salcitani; Scapitani; Siculensi; Solcitani; and Valentini.

SYRACUSAN

HISTORICAL NOTES

Syracuse was founded around 733 BCE and grew to be one of the most pre-eminent Greek cities in the Mediterranean. In 415 BCE, Syracuse found itself at war with Athens, which sought more resources to fight the Peloponnesian War. The Athenian attack failed disastrously, with the destruction of the entire force.

In the 4th century BCE Syracuse was engaged in a series of wars with Carthage for control of Sicily. In 310 BCE, to relieve the Carthaginian siege of Syracuse, Agathocles led an invasion of Africa which although eventually defeated inflicted heavy casualties on the Carthaginians. He allied with the Libyans and then the Numidians but was eventually betrayed by both. In 309 BCE Agathocles formed an alliance with Ophellas, ruler of Cyrene, betrayed and killed him and convinced his forces into accepting him as their leader. He captured Utica in 308 BCE, but his army was defeated while he was away, and Agathocles abandoned it (307 BCE). The Carthaginians laid siege to Syracuse for the fourth and last time in 278 BCE. They retreated at the arrival of king Pyrrhus of Epirus, whom Syracuse had asked for help. After a brief period under the rule of Epirus, Hiero II seized power in 275 BCE. During the First Punic War Syracuse came into conflict with the Romans but sued for peace early on. In the Second Punic War, allied to Carthage, the city was besieged for three years, sacked and the Romans assumed control of Sicily.

TROOP NOTES

The Syracusans supplemented their own forces who fought in traditional Greek style with mercenaries from the western Mediterranean and Italy.

SPANISH - CELTIBERIAN

400 TO 20 BCE

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Celtiberians were Celtic-speaking people of the Iberian Peninsula occupying areas of central Spain. In 134/133 BCE the Roman general Scipio Aemilianus Africanus besieged the Celtiberian stronghold of Numantia. After eight months most of the inhabitants decided to commit suicide rather than surrender.

TROOP NOTES

Cavalry: Spanish cavalry had a good reputation, Poseidonios thought the Spanish cavalry was superior to Numidian.

Infantry: The Celtiberians appear to have followed Celtic traditional styles of fighting.

Skirmishers: Spanish tribes appear to have excelled in guerrilla warfare.

CELTIBERIAN TRIBES

Western Celtiberian tribes included the Allotriges; Astures; Cantabri; Caristii; Carpetani; Celtici; Gallaeci; Plentauri; Turmodigi; Vaccae and Varduli. The Turduli may have been a Lusitanian or Celtiberian tribe. Eastern Celtiberian tribes included the Arevaci; Belli; Cratistii; Lobetani; Lusones; Olcades; Pellendones; Titii; Turboletae and Uraci. The Oretani may have been an Iberian or Celtiberian tribe.

The Vascones were a pre-Celtic Iberian tribe that are the ancestors of the Basque people.

SPANISH - IBERIAN

400 TO 20 BCE

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Iberians refers specifically to the people living in the eastern and southern coasts of the Iberian Peninsula, which by the 6th century BCE had absorbed cultural influences from the Phoenicians and the Greeks. After the First Punic war, the massive war debt suffered by Carthage led them to attempt to expand their control over the Iberian Peninsula. This led to the Carthaginians besieging the Roman ally of Saguntum and initiated the Second Punic War. The Iberian theatre was a key battleground during this war and many Iberian and Celtiberian warriors fought for both Rome and Carthage, though most tribes sided with Carthage. After the Carthaginian defeat, the Iberian territories were divided into two major provinces, Hispania Ulterior and Hispania Citerior. Wars and campaigns in the northern regions of the Iberian Peninsula would continue until 20 BCE.

TROOP NOTES

Cavalry: Spanish cavalry had a good reputation, Poseidonios thought the Spanish cavalry was superior to Numidian.

Infantry: The Iberians fought with javelins and large round shields. In the 3rd century BCE, they adopted the Scutum.

Skirmishers: Spanish tribes appear to have excelled in guerrilla warfare.

SPANISH - LUSITANIAN

400 TO 20 BCE

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Lusitani were an Indo-European people who by the 5th century BCE occupied much of central Portugal. The Lusitani are mentioned for the first time in Livy (218 BCE) and are described as fighting for the Carthaginians. They fought against Rome throughout the 2nd century BCE. In the first century BCE they allied themselves with the Roman general Sertorius. They were not finally defeated until the reign of Augustus in around 24 BCE.

TROOP NOTES

Cavalry: Spanish cavalry had a good reputation, Poseidonios thought the Spanish cavalry was superior to Numidian.

Infantry: All Lusitanians appear to have carried the caetra, a smaller round shield than the scutum. Some however had adopted Celtic armour. They also used all-iron barbed javelins known as soliferreum.

Skirmishers: Spanish tribes appear to have excelled in guerrilla warfare.

NUMIDIAN OR MOORISH

310 BCE TO 428 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

Numidia was an ancient kingdom in eastern Algeria and Tunisia. Numidia was originally divided between Massylii in the east and Masaesyli in the west. At the end of the Second Punic War, Massinissa, king of the Massylii, defeated Syphax of the Masaesyli to unify Numidia into one kingdom. After the death of the long-lived Masinissa around 148 BCE, he was succeeded by his son Micipsa. When Micipsa died in 118, the kingdom fell into dispute. Jugurtha, an illegitimate son of Micipsa, came out on top but fell into dispute with Rome. This led to the long-drawn out Jugurthine War which only ended when Sulla captured Jugurtha. After the death of Jugurtha, western Numidia was added to the lands of Bocchus, king of Mauretania.

Numidia was becoming more influenced by Rome. In the Roman civil wars King Juba I of Numidia was allied to Pompey, Bogud of Mauretania was allied to Caesar. Numidia and Mauretania were incorporated into the Roman empire by 25 CE. There were several Moorish revolts until independence was gained in 429 CE following the Vandal invasion.

TROOP NOTES

Elephants: These were African forest Elephants. Elephants were hunted by the Carthaginians in Numidia. Trained elephants were given to the Numidians by the Romans after Zama.

Cavalry: Numidian cavalry were famous skirmishers described by Sallust as operating in "haphazard groups". Equipped with javelins they would retreat if charged but would then wheel round and attack with great daring.

Infantry: Infantry were initially equipped like the cavalry and fought as skirmishers. The Romans trained some Numidians to fight in formation during the Second Punic War.

Troops in territories taken over from the Carthaginians may also have fought in a closer formation than skirmishers. Images suggest such troops were armed with a Scutum and javelins.

By the 1st century BCE, the Numidians were being influenced by the Romans. King Juba, allied to the Pompeians, formed four "legions" of infantry.

Capussa	206
Lacumazes	206
Massinissa	206 – 148

The kings of the Masaesyli (Western Numidia) were

Syphax	Before 215 – 202 BCE
Vemina	202 – ?

At this time we also know of a Mauretanian king called Bagas.

Under Massinissa the kingdom was united. Three sons of Massinissa originally shared the kingdom. Micipsa tried the same thing with his heirs but the result was civil war.

Massinissa	202 – 148 BCE
Micipsa	148 – 118
Gulussa	148 – 145
Mastanabal	148 – 140s
Hiempsal I	118 – 117
Adherbal	118 – 112
Jugurtha	118 – 105
Gauda	105 – 88
Hiarbas	88 – 81

At this time Numidia was split into an eastern and western kingdom.

Eastern Numidian rulers were:

Hiempsal II	88 – 60 BCE
Juba I	60 – 46

Western Numidian rulers were:

Masteabar	88 – 81 BCE
Massinissa II	81 – 46
Sittius	46 – 44
Arabio	44 – 40

Caesar created the province of Africa Nova which included Eastern Numidia between 46 – 30 and Western Numidia from 40 – 30 BCE. The kingdom was re – established.

Juba II	30 – 25 BCE
---------	-------------

A line of kings ruled Mauretania:

Bocchus I	c.110 – 80s BCE
Mastanesosus	c. 80s – 49
Bogud (joint ruler)	49 – c.38
Bocchus II	49 – c.33

In 25 BCE Augustus created the client kingdom of Mauretania to include Western Numidia and Mauretania.

Juba II	25 BCE – 23 CE
Ptolemy (began as co-ruler with Juba II)	20 – 40 CE

TRUCELESS WAR MERCENARY

241 TO 237 BCE

HISTORICAL NOTES

After their defeat in the First Punic War, the Carthaginians still had a mostly mercenary army in being in Sicily and Sardinia that had not been paid for a considerable period of time and needed to be disbanded. The commander in Sicily, Hamilcar Barca (father of the great Hannibal) arranged to have the troops there shipped to Carthage in small batches and then promptly washed his hands of the matter left for home leaving the details to his subordinate, Gisco, and abandoning his loyal troops. Some 20,000 mercenaries were shipped back to Carthage where, instead of paying them off as they arrived, the authorities collected them all together and persuaded them to move inland to Sicca. There, pleading a lack of funds, Carthage, led by Hanno the Great, tried to negotiate a lower payoff for the mercenaries. The mercenaries rejected this and, realising their own power being by far the largest body of troops in Carthaginian Africa, revolted. They were joined by allegedly 70,000 Libyans who were angered by years of crushing taxes imposed by Carthage to fund the war against Rome. the main leaders of the revolt were Spendius, a Campanian, Mathos, a Liyan, and Autaritus, a Gaul. The ensuing war was especially bitter with both sides committing many atrocities, the most well-known of them being when the Carthaginians had their elephants trample prisoners to death. Because of the brutality, Polybius dubbed the war "The Truceless War".

TROOP NOTES

The army was a mix of mercenaries and Libyans. More than half of the army shipped back from Sicily comprised of Libyan troops. The remained were a mixture of "mixed Hellenes", Italiots, Gauls, Ligurians and a few Balearics. Cavalry numbers are uncertain but appear to have been low. The Libyan volunteers who joined the revolt in large numbers were poor troops overall and on more than one occasion panicked quickly. They were never very effective thus we limit the number that can be upgraded. In 240 BCE the revolt was joined by a Numidian prince, Naravas, with perhaps 2000 men. However, these very quickly deserted to the Carthaginians and proved very effective against their former allies. Because of this unreliability we only allow the allied general to be Competent at best.

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Carthaginians fought two major wars against the Romans. After the First Punic War they had lost control of Sicily, Sardinia, and Corsica. After defeat in the Second Punic War Carthage lost all its possessions outside Tunisia, effectively reducing it to the status of a Roman vassal. The city was destroyed by the Romans in 146 BCE.

TROOP NOTES

The Carthaginian army was still a mix of troops from the western Mediterranean.
Elephants: Elephants were introduced by 262 BCE. They were often used to open the attack.
Cavalry: A mix of Punic, Spanish, and Gallic cavalry were used in addition to Numidians.
Infantry: The Carthaginians increasingly relied on Spanish and Gallic foot in their armies, but the traditional spearmen were also used.

FIRST SERVILE WAR SLAVE REVOLT

135 TO 132 BCE

HISTORICAL NOTES

The First Servile War arose in Sicily. Sicily supplied much of the wheat to feed Rome. Wealthy landowners had acquired large numbers of slaves. A freeborn slave named Eunus styled himself "King Antiochus". At the same time in the western part of Sicily, a slave manager or vilicus named Cleon gathered slave troops under him. The Roman authorities were slow to react. The revolt was eventually suppressed by the consul Publius Rupilius.

TROOP NOTES

"King Antiochus" formed a bodyguard. They all suicided rather than surrender.
The slaves were characterised by desperation due to the brutal treatment they might expect if captured, but also suffered from a shortage of arms.

HISTORICAL ENEMIES

Mid Republican Roman 2513.

SECOND SERVILE WAR SLAVE REVOLT

104 TO 100 BCE

HISTORICAL NOTES

Around 800 Italian slaves were released from Sicily, frustrating many non-Italians who thought they would be released as well, and many of these abandoned their masters, incorrectly believing themselves to have been freed. A rebellion broke out when they were ordered back to servitude by the Governor. A slave by the name of Salvius was following in the footsteps of Eunus, fighting for his rights and elected leader of this rebellion. He assumed the name Tryphon, from Diodotus Tryphon, a Seleucid ruler. He amassed an army containing thousands of trained and equipped slaves, including 2,000 cavalry and 20,000 infantry, and was joined by a Cilician named Athenion and his men from the west of Sicily. The Roman consul Manius Aquillius quelled the revolt only after great effort.

TROOP NOTES

The slave army amassed 2,000 cavalry.
The slaves were characterised by desperation due to the brutal treatment they might expect if captured, but also suffered from a shortage of arms.

SPANISH - SERTORIAN

80 TO 72 BCE

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Sertorian War lasted from 80 to 72 BCE and was a conflict in which a coalition of Lusitanian and other Spanish tribes with exiled Romans led by Quintus Sertorius fought against the representatives of the regime established by Sulla. In 77 BCE Sertorius was joined by 53 cohorts of Roman exiles who were led by Marcus Perpena. Perpena resented Sertorius. Sertorius was assassinated by Marcus Perpena who was then promptly defeated by Pompey.

TROOP NOTES

The army of Sertorius was essentially Spanish, but some troops were drilled by the exiled Romans. Perpena's 53 cohorts are represented by an allied command.
