CREATING AN ARMY WITH THE MORTEM ET GLORIAM ARMY LISTS

Use the army lists to create your own customised armies using the Mortem et Gloriam Army Builder.

There are few general rules to follow:

1. An army must have at least 2 generals and can have no more than 4.
2. You must take at least the minimum of any troops noted and may not go beyond the maximum of any.
3. No army may have more than two generals who are Talented or better.
4. Unless specified otherwise, all elements in a UG must be classified identically. Unless specified otherwise, if an optional characteristic is taken, it must be taken by all the elements in the UG for which that optional characteristic is available.
5. Any UGs can be downgraded by one quality grade and/or by one shooting skill (Skilled to Experienced or Experienced to Unskilled) representing less strong, tired, or understrength troops. If any bases are downgraded all in the UG must be downgraded. So Average-Experienced skirmishers can always be downgraded to Poor-Unskilled.
6. Points are shown for troops with all mandatory characteristics applied. Points have been rounded to the nearest whole number. If quality or shooting skill is downgraded, then the points (including the points for any optional characteristics) will need to be adjusted.
7. An army entirely of Cavalry, Chariots, Camelry or Infantry with the Dismountable characteristic may choose the No Camp option.

Where allies are allowed, they must conform to the following rules:

1. An ally must be a minimum of 2 and a maximum of 4 UGs.
2. They must take enough UGs to get them to at least 50% of the minimums in the list being used.
3. They can thereafter take any troops up to the maximum to create the rest of the allied contingent.
4. Unless specified in the notes, the general must be the same type as the army commander in their own army's list but cannot be legendary.

Usually this results in 1-3 UGs being compulsory and you having full flexibility on the rest.

Where an internal ally is allowed, and no contingent is specified they must conform to the following rules:

1. Each internal ally must be a minimum of 2 and a maximum of 4 UGs.
2. The total number of troops taken of each type in the entire army must not exceed the maxima for that troop type.
3. They must take enough UGs to get them to at least 50% of the minimums in the list if there is enough allowance for a UG after the core army itself has taken the minimum. For example: An army has 4-12 cavalry (UG size 4,6) and 18-32 spearmen (UG size 6,8,9) as compulsory troops with 2 internal allies. The core army must take 4 cavalry and at least 18 spearmen. The first ally must take 4 cavalry and at least 9 spearmen. The second ally must take 4 cavalry but cannot take the 9 spearmen as this would exceed the 32 spearmen limit for the army.

4. If a list requires a proportion of a troop type to be upgraded or regraded, then the army as a whole must comply with this requirement. Internal allies do not have to comply these requirements. For example: $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ of Turcomans must be upgraded from Experienced to Skilled shooting. An internal ally might have all Experienced as long as the army as a whole has $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ Skilled.
5. They can thereafter take any troops up to the maximum to create the rest of the allied contingent.

Usually this results in 1-3 UGs being compulsory and you having full flexibility on the rest.

As a courtesy to your opponent when you deploy your troops, you should describe each UG fully; type, training, quality, protection, melee weaponry, shooting skill and weaponry and characteristics. You should also explain how any unusual troop types in your army function and any special rules including Stakes, Caltrops, Barricades and Obstacles and troop types such as Battle Wagons.

The easiest way to calculate points is to use the downloadable on-line army builder at www.mortem-et-gloriam.co.uk. Use this and all you do is use drop downs for the troop classifications and it does all the work for you. For those who prefer pen and paper, or who want to doodle some approximate designs before loading an army up, we have provided the points values with the lists. If a discrepancy exists in the points values between these lists and the army builder, then the army builder has the correct value.

FRIENDLY AND SCENARIO GAMES

Feel free to vary the troop classifications for friendly and scenario games. An interesting aspect of scenario games can be to see what the effect is from representing troops in a different manner.

HISTORICAL INTRODUCTION

The Arab Conquests began with the Islamic Prophet Muhammad in the 7th century. The resulting empire stretched from the borders of China and India, across Central Asia, the Middle East, North Africa, Sicily, and the Iberian Peninsula, to the Pyrenees. The Muslim conquests brought about the collapse of the Sassanid Empire and a great territorial loss for the Byzantine Empire. This was at least in part due to the Sassanid Persian and Byzantine Roman empires being militarily and economically exhausted from decades of fighting one another. It may also have been in part due to the ideological coherence of the Muslim armies.

In late 620s Muhammad had already managed to conquer and unify much of Arabia under Muslim rule. It was under his leadership that the first Muslim-Byzantine skirmishes took place. Muhammad died in 632 and was succeeded by Abu Bakr, the first Caliph with undisputed control of the entire Arab peninsula which resulted in the consolidation of a powerful Muslim state throughout the peninsula.

The provinces of Palestine were the first to be wrested from Byzantine control. A Byzantine expedition into southern Palestine was defeated by the Arab forces under command of Khalid ibn al-Walid at the Battle of Ajnadayn in 634. On the heels of their victory, the Arab armies took Damascus. A major Byzantine counter-offensive was mounted in 636 causing the Arabs to abandon Damascus. A decisive battle was fought at Yarmouk resulting in a catastrophic defeat for the Byzantines, after which they no longer resisted the Arabs in the field and rapidly withdrew northwards abandoning Syria and Mesopotamia to the invaders. Some fortified towns continued to resist despite the rout of the imperial army; Jerusalem fell in 638, Caesarea in 640, while others held out until 641.

After an Arab incursion into Sassanian territories, the energetic king Yazdgerd III, who had just ascended the Persian throne, raised an army to resist the invasion. However, the Persians suffered a devastating defeat at the Battle of al-Qadisiyyah in 636. As a result, the Arab-Muslims gained control over the whole of the Euphrates and Tigris valleys, including Ctesiphon, the capital city of the Sassanids. The fate of the Sassanian empire was sealed at the Battle of Nahavand in 642.

The Muslim general 'Amr ibn al-'As began the conquest of Egypt on his own initiative in 639. The Arab forces won a major victory at the Battle of Heliopolis in 640. When the emperor Heraclius died in 641 the defenders lost hope of receiving reinforcements from Constantinople. The last major centre to fall into Arab hands was Alexandria, which capitulated in 642.

The Umayyad Caliphate was established in 661. The Umayyad regime was founded by Muawiya ibn Abi Sufyan, long-time governor of Syria, after the end of the First Muslim Civil War. The relations between the Muslims and the Christians in the state were stable in this time. The Umayyads were involved in frequent battles with the Christian Byzantines without being concerned with protecting themselves in Syria, which had remained largely Christian like many other parts of the empire.

Byzantine rule in northwest Africa at the time was largely confined to the coastal plains, while autonomous Berber polities controlled the rest. Muslim incursions were effectively resisted for many years. Arab forces were able to capture Carthage in 698 and Tangiers by 708. After the fall of Tangiers, many Berbers joined the Muslim army. A major Berber revolt broke out between 740 and 743. The Umayyads, weakened by the Third Muslim Civil War of 744–747, were finally toppled by the Abbasid Revolution in 750. A branch of the family fled across North Africa to Al-Andalus, where they established the Caliphate of Córdoba, which lasted until 1031.

The Abbasid dynasty descended from Muhammad's youngest uncle, Abbas ibn Abd al-Muttalib, from whom the dynasty takes its name. They ruled as caliphs, for most of their period from their capital in Baghdad, after assuming authority over the Muslim empire from the Umayyads in 750. Over time this authority was diminished and they had to cede power to other dynasties. The political power of the caliphs largely ended with the rise of the Buyids and the Seljuk Turks in the 10th century.

In Morocco the Idrisids ruled from 789 to 926 and the Maghrawanids from 1000 to 1064. The Aghlabids ruled in Tunisia from 820 to 909 and Sicily from 827 to 1091. The Fatimids supplanted the Aghlabids in Tunisia from 909 to 978 but were replaced by the Zirids from 972 to 1160.

The Tulunids were a dynasty of Turkic origin and were the first independent dynasty to rule Islamic Egypt, as well as much of Syria. They remained independent from 868, when they broke away from the central authority of the Abbasid dynasty, until 905, when the Abbasids restored the Tulunid domains to their control. The Ikhshidid dynasty ruled Egypt from 935 to 969 but came to an end when defeated by the Fatimids.

The Tahirid dynasty was founded by Tahir ibn Husayn, a leading general in the service of the Abbasid caliph al-Ma'mun. The dynasty governed the Abbasid province of Khorasan from 821 to 873, and the city of Baghdad from 820 until 891. Their capital in Khorasan was initially located at Merv, but later moved to Nishapur. The Tahirids enjoyed a high degree of autonomy in their governance of Khorasan, although they remained subject to the Abbasid caliphate. The Saffarid dynasty was founded by Ya'qub ibn Laith as-Saffar who originated from Sistan. He overthrew the Tahirids and ruled over parts of eastern Iran, Khorasan, Afghanistan and Sistan from 861 to 900. His brother and successor, Amr ibn Laith, was defeated at the Battle of Balkh against Ismail Samani in 900. The Saffarids were subsequently confined to their heartland of Sistan, with their role reduced to that of vassals of the Samanids and their successors. The Samanid state was founded by four brothers; Nuh, Ahmad, Yahya, and Ilyas. Each of them ruled their own territory under Abbasid suzerainty. In 892, Isma'il ibn Ahmad (892–907) united the Samanid state under one ruler. It was also under him that the Samanids became independent of Abbasid authority. The power of the Samanids began to crumble in the latter half of the 10th century. In 962, one of the ghulams, Alp Tigin, commander of the army in Khorasan, seized Ghazna and established himself there. His successors, however, including Sebük Tigin, continued to rule as Samanid "governors". With the weakened Samanids facing rising challenges from the Karakhanids for control of Transoxiana, Sebük later took control of all the provinces south of the Oxus and established the Ghaznavid Empire. In 992, a Karakhanid, Harun Bughra Khan, captured Bukhara, the Samanid capital. The Samanid domains were split up between the Ghaznavids, who gained Khorasan and Afghanistan, and the Karakhanids, who received Transoxiana; the Oxus River thus became the boundary between the two rival empires. The Samanid Isma'il Muntasir attempted to recapture Transoxiana with the help of the Oghuz Turks, but he was killed in 1005.

During the 10th century Abbasid control further weakened enabling various dynasties to establish their independence. This enabled the Hamdanid dynasty, founded by Hamdan ibn Hamdun to hold power in Mosul 890 to 991 and Aleppo 944 to 1008. In Mosul they were succeeded by the Uqaylids from 996 to 1096. In Aleppo they were succeeded by the Mirdassids 1008 to 1079. Further south of Baghdad the Mazyadid dynasty ruled from 997 to 1150.

The Dailamites were an Iranian people inhabiting the mountainous regions of northern Iran on the southern shore of the Caspian Sea. They were employed as soldiers from the time of the Sasanian Empire, and long resisted the Muslim conquest of Persia and subsequent Islamization. In the 930s, the Dailamite Buyid dynasty emerged and managed to gain control over much of modern-day Iran, which it held until the coming of the Seljuk Turks in the mid-11th century. The Buyid dynasty was founded by 'Ali ibn Buya, who in 934 conquered Fars, an old centre of the Sassanid empire. In 945, the youngest brother, Ahmad ibn Buya, conquered Iraq and made Baghdad his capital. Thereafter the family ruled as a confederation of emirates until c.1055. The Caspian Sea provinces of Gorgan and Mazandaran were ruled by the Ziyarids from 928 to 1043 when they were conquered by the Seljuk Turks. Another Dailamite dynasty, the Sallarid or Musafirid dynasty ruled what is now modern Azerbaijan from 941 to 984 when it was captured by the Rawadids.

MAXIMUS ARMY LISTS

CALCULATING POINTS

Army points are calculated as follows:

GENERALS - MAXIMUS

Type of general	Army Commander		Sub-general		Ally general
	Professional	Instinctive	Professional	Instinctive	Professional	Instinctive
Legendary	1600	1400	n/a	n/a	800	700
Talented	1100	900	850	700	650	600
Competent	700	550	600	450	300	250
Mediocre	250	0	400	250	100	50

CAMPS

Type of camp	Poor	Average	Superior
Unfortified	108	180	252
Fortified	216	360	504
Flexible	180	300	420
Mobile	126	210	294
No camp	378	N/A	N/A

A flexible camp is deployed as a fortified camp when defending and a mobile camp when invading.
No camp deploys a poor mobile camp when defending and no camp at all when invading.

UGs

For each UG multiply the cost shown in the list (adjusting for any optional characteristics) by the number of bases.

NOTES

1. Points values for skirmishers in Magna and Pacto are greater than in Maximus as SuGs shoot at full effect with only two ranks.
2. For further details on how points are calculated visit the Mortem et Gloriam website.

EARLY ARAB CONQUEST

629 TO 637 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

This covers the wars of the Prophet and his immediate successors, the khalifs Abu Bakr and Umar from the conquest of Mecca until the widespread availability of horses. The Arab armies achieved a series of victories against a weakened Sassanid Persian Empire and defeated the Byzantine army at Yarmouk in 636 CE. The battle of Qadisiyyah (also 636 CE) resulted in the conquest of Iraq.

TROOP NOTES

The early Arab conquests relied mainly on infantry. The number of horses available to the Arabs in the initial phases of the conquests would have been small but increasing as they established themselves in Palestine and Iraq. Camels whilst used widely for strategic transport and baggage, were hardly ever used in battle.

The standard formation was an infantry centre and two infantry wings, with any cavalry grouped into an extra command used for outflanking or as a reserve. Infantry are described in contemporary accounts as primarily swordsmen although spears were common, often mailed, and usually as resisting stubbornly rather than charging wildly.

ARAB CONQUEST

638 TO 685 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

This covers the early conquests including those of the early Umayyad Caliphate until the Second Fitna. Syria was conquered by 641 CE, Alexandria and Egypt fell in 642. The Arab conquests continued with a complete conquest of the Sassanid Persian empire by 652. In 670 the Arabs founded a settlement at Qayrawan in modern Tunisia, but the conquest of Africa was met with fierce resistance by the Berbers.

TROOP NOTES

Following the victories at Yarmouk and Qadisiyyah large quantities of captured horses and armour was available and a significant proportion of the new permanent "Jund" forces became cavalry carrying spears and shields. Jund were settled in large permanent military encampments in conquered territory. Asiwira were Sassanid cavalry who deserted to the Arabs following Qadisiyyah and received the highest rates of pay in the army alongside the first converts to Islam.

CHANGES FROM LAST VERSION

Added Sassanid rebel allies.

KHAWARIJ

658 TO 873 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Khawarij appeared in the first century of Islam. They revolted against the authority of the Caliph Ali following the battle of Siffin. A Khawariji assassinated Ali, and for the next two hundred years the Khawarij were a source of insurrection against the Caliphate.

TROOP NOTES

Their main strength was their cavalry which was more aggressive than the contemporary Arab cavalry who often dismounted to face them - the Khawarij cavalry was less likely to dismount but could on occasion. Infantry seem to have remained more traditional than the caliphal armies. On occasion in the Marwanid period Umayyad rebels allied with the Khawarij.

UMAYYAD AND EARLY 'ABBASID

685 TO 830 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers the consolidation of the Umayyad Caliphate and the replacement Abbasid Caliphate until the start of the process of fracture into autonomous dynasties. It excludes North Africa and the armies that invaded Spain and France.

TROOP NOTES

From this time Arab armies ceased to be purely Arab and included Iranians, Khorasanians, Egyptians, Copts, Syrians, and Indians. The cavalry remained principally Arab but could also include Christians such as the Armenians. Ghazi warriors depended upon plunder for their livelihood and were prone to brigandage and sedition in times of peace. Mawali were non-Moslem troops. The ghilman were slave-soldiers taken as prisoners of war or purchased.

HISTORICAL NOTES

Al-Andalus was the Arab name for the Muslim possessions in the Iberian Peninsula. This list covers armies from the arrival of Umayyad dynasty until the abolition of the Caliphate in 1031 CE.

TROOP NOTES

- Native regulars. These were originally Jund troops. They included Syrians who had been defeated by Berber rebels.
- Volunteers. Called hashdid these were recruited for a single campaign.
- Religious volunteers who lived in fortified frontier communities known as ribats.
- Foreign mercenaries. Permanent units paid regular salaries.
- Mercenaries recruited for a specific campaign and who were paid from booty gathered during a campaign.

NORTH AFRICAN DYNASTIES

757 TO 1164 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

The 'Abbasids who overthrew the Umayyad Caliphate were mainly interested in the east rather than North Africa. This led to the rise of several independent dynasties. This list covers the Idrisids in Morocco from 789 to 926 CE, the Aghlabids in Tunisia from 820 to 909 and Sicily from 827 to 1091, Fatimids in Tunisia from 909 to 978, the Zirids in Tunisia from 972 to 1160 and the Maghrawanids in Morocco from 1000 to 1064. This list also covers other Berber tribes that converted to Islam or ruled on behalf of the Arabs.

TROOP NOTES

The relatively small Arab armies that conquered North Africa had been mostly drawn from Syria. Mawali, who had converted to Islam, rose in importance as soldiers and in the command structure. Such mawalis came from Coptic Egyptian, Greek, Persian and Berber backgrounds. Armies in North Africa often recruited large numbers of Berbers.

KHURASANIAN DYNASTIES

821 TO 1003 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers the dynasties in the eastern provinces of the former Abbasid empire. The Tahirid dynasty ruled from 821 to 873, the Saffarid dynasty from 861 to 1003 and the Samanid dynasty from 875 to 999.

The Tahirids were governors of Khurasan on behalf of the Abbasids.

TROOP NOTES

The armies relied heavily on local dihqan landowners fighting in a similar style to their Sassanid ancestors, but Turkish ghulam were also recruited. Iranian armies were influenced by the Steppe nomads and the greater tradition of horse archery.

CALIPHAL LATER 'ABBASID

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers the armies of the Abbasids based out of Samarra and Baghdad from the rule of al Mu'tasim. It ends with the capture of Baghdad by the Buwayhids. The political power was largely or totally held by the viziers or army generals.

TROOP NOTES

Mu'tasim started recruiting Turkish slaves into the army. These became the famous ghilman (ghulam) cavalry, soon coming to dominate the Abbasid military.

ZANJ REVOLT

869 TO 883 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Zanj Rebellion was a major uprising against the Abbasid Caliphate, which took place from 869 until 883. Begun near the city of Basra in present-day southern Iraq and led by one 'Ali ibn Muhammad. It involved slaves as well as free men. The Zanj revolt was one of the most vicious and brutal uprisings of the many disturbances that plagued the Abbasid central government.

TROOP NOTES

On the few occasions when the 'Abbasids were able to use their cavalry mounted they tended to run over the Zanj infantry quite easily, hence the Loose classification.

HISTORICAL ENEMIES

TULUNID AND IKHSHIDID

874 TO 969 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers the Tulunid and Ikhshidid dynasties in Egypt. Ahmad ibn Tulun established an independent Egyptian army and defeated troops of the Caliphate sent against him. The Tulunids advanced into Syria but collapsed by 905. The founder of the Ikhshidid dynasty was ibn Tughj, who was appointed governor of Egypt in 933 CE, but had to seize control. The Fatimids were threatening Egypt but were defeated in 936. The dynasty faced threats from Syria and Nubian incursions. Egypt was conquered by the Fatimids in 969.

TROOP NOTES

The core of Egyptian armies at this time were Turkish ghilman, supplemented with Zanj or slave troops from Africa.

BEDOUIN DYNASTIES

890 TO 1500 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

During the 9th century, Abbasid central power weakened, and autonomous dynasties emerged. This list covers the major dynasties of the Hamdanids in Mosul (890 to 991 CE), Hamdanids in Aleppo (944 to 1008), Uqaylids in Mosul (996 to 1096) and the Mirdasids in Aleppo (1008 to 1079). It includes the Shirvanshahs in modern Azerbaijan. This list also includes minor dynasties and tribes in Arabia, Egypt, and North Africa such as the Hilali Arabs, Uyunids in Bahrain (1076-1253), Usfurids (1253-1320) and Jarwanids (1305-1487).

TROOP NOTES

By the mid-10th century horse armour started to be used by ghilman.

BAHRAIN QARMATIAN

897 TO 1078 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

After the split of the Qarmatian movement in 899, their greatest stronghold remained in Bahrain, which in this period included much of eastern Arabia as well as the islands that comprise the present state. The Zanj rebellion provided the opportunity for Abu Sa'id al-Jannabi, who captured Bahrain's capital Hajr and al-Hasa in 899, which he made the capital of his republic. Under al-Jannabi (ruled 923–944), the Qarmatians came close to raiding Baghdad in 927, and sacked Mecca and Medina in 930. The desecration of the holiest sites in Islam shocked the Muslim world and humiliated the Abbasids. The Qarmatians were the most powerful force in the Persian Gulf and Middle East, controlling the coast of Oman and collecting tribute from the caliph in Baghdad as well as the head of the Fatimid Caliphate. They were defeated by the Fatimids in 978. As tribute payments were cut off the state shrank. Bahrain broke away in 1058. In 1067 the final stronghold at the Hofhuf Oasis was besieged and the Qarmatians forced to surrender.

TROOP NOTES

The Qarmatians had an organised army including at times full time generals. An important part of the army was the infantry armed with long spears and large shields supported by archers with powerful bows. These were mounted on camels. Armour is not mentioned for infantry or cavalry.

DAILAMI DYNASTIES

HISTORICAL NOTES

During the 9th century, Abbasid central power weakened, and autonomous dynasties emerged. This list covers the armies of dynasties based in the northern Iranian provinces around the Caspian Sea. The Dailamite peoples had been used as guards by the Sassanids and resisted the Arab conquests. The dynasties included the Buwayhids or Buyids (934 to 1062 CE), Ziyarids (928 to 1043) and Sallarids or Musafirids (941 to 984). It excludes the Buyid armies based in Baghdad which have their own list.

TROOP NOTES

Elephants were experimented with by Adud al-Dawla but it is not certain that they ever fought in a battle. They were used to trample to death an enemy general!

BAGHDAD BUYID

946 TO 978 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list represents the Buyid armies based in Baghdad from the takeover in 946 CE to the invasion by the Buyid army of Fars aimed at taking back Buyid control from the Turkish ghilman. The ghilman had been used by the Buyids to counter the power of the Dailami palace guards but these came to an agreement with the palace guards and were effectively ruling the city by 973 CE.

TROOP NOTES

The Dailami were treated as second rate troops compared to the Turks.
In 973 the Turks raised large number of volunteers. Unsurprisingly the Dailami refused to participate.

KARAKHANID KHANATE

960 TO 1211 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Karakhanids (or Qarakanids) were a confederation formed sometime in the 9th century CE. In 960 there was a mass conversion of Turks to Islam, circumstantial evidence suggests these were the Karakhanids. In the final decade of the 10th century, they began struggle against the Samanids for control of Transoxiana. By 999 they held the Samanid capital Bukhara. The Ghaznavids took the territory south of the Oxus River, the Karakhanids the territory to the north. At around this time the Karakhanids completed the conquest of the Kingdom of Khotan in the Turfan basin. Early in the 11th century the unity of the Karakhanid dynasty was fractured by frequent internal warfare and split into eastern and western khanates. In 1089 the Seljuks seized the Western Khanate. The Eastern Khanate became a Seljuk vassal but regained full independence quickly and by the beginning of the 12th century had captured some Seljuk territory.

The Qara Khitai were remnants of the Liao dynasty. In 1137 they defeated the Western Khanate. The Karakhanids became vassals. In 1141 the Qara Khitai became the dominate power in the region by defeating the Seljuks at the Battle of Qatwan. In 1207 the Khwarazm invaded and in 1211 defeated the Qara Khitai near Talas. The Karakhanid state was quickly extinguished.

TROOP NOTES

The Karakhanids were like other Turkish armies but employed a core of ghulam slave troops. Kumaji were tribesman from the mountains north of the upper Oxus.

GHAZNAVID

962 TO 1187 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

In 962 CE Alp Tigin, a Turkic ghulam general, seized power at Ghazna. His son Mahmud the Great conquered the remaining Samanid territories, much of Northern India and territory from the Buwayhids. By 1027 the empire stretched from south of the Caspian Sea to India. The western territories were lost, first to the Seljuk Turks and then to the Ghurids so that only the Indian possessions remained. The last of these was lost in 1187.

TROOP NOTES

The Ghaznavids were the first Arab dynasty to regularly use elephants in warfare.

EARLY FATIMID EGYPTIAN

969 TO 1073 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Fatimid state took shape among the Kutama Berbers in North Africa. In 969 CE they conquered Egypt and established Cairo as the capital of their caliphate.

TROOP NOTES

From the mid-9th century Arab armies became dependent for regular troops on contingents of slave soldiers, the ghulams. The largely Turkish white slaves were known as mamluks. The central corps were the Royal Mamluks. As well as Turks, the slave-soldiers were mostly either Sudanese or Berbers. The Sudanese units were known collectively as 'Abid al-Shira. They served as spearmen but also as archers. Some archers may have been defended with a front rank of spearmen with large shields, hence the option for Pavise. Bedouin and Berber tribesmen also served as auxiliaries.

SELJUK TURK

1037 to 1090 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Seljuks (or Seljuqs) were a branch of Oghuz Turks who around 985 CE converted to Islam and in the 11th century migrated into mainland Persia where they encountered the Ghaznavid empire. In 1035 they defeated the Ghaznavids and received territory. In 1040 they defeated the Ghaznavid army again and ended the Ghaznavid domination in Khurasan. The successful siege of Isfahan in 1050-1051 led to the establishment of the Great Seljuk Empire. In 1055 they captured Baghdad. From the start of his reign in 1063 Alp Arslan had most of the empire under his control and this has its own list - Great Seljuk Empire. Turkmen in Syria retained their independence and are represented by this list. Another group in Kirman was not brought into the empire until 1073 and is represented by this list. The Sultanate of Rum was founded in 1081 and incorporated into the Empire in 1086. Between these dates it is represented by this list.

TROOP NOTES

The Seljuk army relied on Turcomans. The 'askar system had not been introduced at this date.

GREAT SELJUK EMPIRE

HISTORICAL NOTES

In 1071 CE the Seljuk army defeated the Byzantine army at Manzikert. Under Malik Shah I they ruled from the Aegean Sea to the edge of China. When Malik Shah I died in 1092, the empire was split between his brother and four sons.

TROOP NOTES

Seljuk armies consisted of 2 major elements, the 'askar of the Sultan and the 'askar of the provincial amirs. The 'askars were full-time mamluks. These were supplemented by Turcoman tribesmen and Bedouin and Kurdish auxiliaries. A source records the Royal 'askar numbering 46,000 under Malik Shah.
