CREATING AN ARMY WITH THE MORTEM ET GLORIAM ARMY LISTS

Use the army lists to create your own customised armies using the Mortem et Gloriam Army Builder.

There are few general rules to follow:

1. An army must have at least 2 generals and can have no more than 4.
2. You must take at least the minimum of any troops noted and may not go beyond the maximum of any.
3. No army may have more than two generals who are Talented or better.
4. Unless specified otherwise, all elements in a UG must be classified identically. Unless specified otherwise, if an optional characteristic is taken, it must be taken by all the elements in the UG for which that optional characteristic is available.
5. Any UGs can be downgraded by one quality grade and/or by one shooting skill (Skilled to Experienced or Experienced to Unskilled) representing less strong, tired, or understrength troops. If any bases are downgraded all in the UG must be downgraded. So Average-Experienced skirmishers can always be downgraded to Poor-Unskilled.
6. Points are shown for troops with all mandatory characteristics applied. Points have been rounded to the nearest whole number. If quality or shooting skill is downgraded, then the points (including the points for any optional characteristics) will need to be adjusted.
7. An army entirely of Cavalry, Chariots, Camelry or Infantry with the Dismountable characteristic may choose the No Camp option.

Where allies are allowed, they must conform to the following rules:

1. An ally must be a minimum of 2 and a maximum of 4 UGs.
2. They must take enough UGs to get them to at least 50% of the minimums in the list being used.
3. They can thereafter take any troops up to the maximum to create the rest of the allied contingent.
4. Unless specified in the notes, the general must be the same type as the army commander in their own army's list but cannot be legendary.

Usually this results in 1-3 UGs being compulsory and you having full flexibility on the rest.

Where an internal ally is allowed, and no contingent is specified they must conform to the following rules:

1. Each internal ally must be a minimum of 2 and a maximum of 4 UGs.
2. The total number of troops taken of each type in the entire army must not exceed the maxima for that troop type.
3. They must take enough UGs to get them to at least 50% of the minimums in the list if there is enough allowance for a UG after the core army itself has taken the minimum. For example: An army has 4-12 cavalry (UG size 4,6) and 18-32 spearmen (UG size 6,8,9) as compulsory troops with 2 internal allies. The core army must take 4 cavalry and at least 18 spearmen. The first ally must take 4 cavalry and at least 9 spearmen. The second ally must take 4 cavalry but cannot take the 9 spearmen as this would exceed the 32 spearmen limit for the army.

4. If a list requires a proportion of a troop type to be upgraded or regraded, then the army as a whole must comply with this requirement. Internal allies do not have to comply these requirements. For example: $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ of Turcomans must be upgraded from Experienced to Skilled shooting. An internal ally might have all Experienced as long as the army as a whole has $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ Skilled.
5. They can thereafter take any troops up to the maximum to create the rest of the allied contingent.

Usually this results in 1-3 UGs being compulsory and you having full flexibility on the rest.

As a courtesy to your opponent when you deploy your troops, you should describe each UG fully; type, training, quality, protection, melee weaponry, shooting skill and weaponry and characteristics. You should also explain how any unusual troop types in your army function and any special rules including Stakes, Caltrops, Barricades and Obstacles and troop types such as Battle Wagons.

The easiest way to calculate points is to use the downloadable on-line army builder at www.mortem-et-gloriam.co.uk. Use this and all you do is use drop downs for the troop classifications and it does all the work for you. For those who prefer pen and paper, or who want to doodle some approximate designs before loading an army up, we have provided the points values with the lists. If a discrepancy exists in the points values between these lists and the army builder, then the army builder has the correct value.

FRIENDLY AND SCENARIO GAMES

Feel free to vary the troop classifications for friendly and scenario games. An interesting aspect of scenario games can be to see what the effect is from representing troops in a different manner.

HISTORICAL INTRODUCTION

The term Franks originated in the third and fourth centuries as a collective label for an alliance of Germanic tribes. The name “Franks” is generally thought to mean either ‘the free ones’, or possibly to the word for javelin ‘franca’ or throwing axe ‘francisca’.

In response to frequent Frankish incursions, by the 4th century Franks were being settled within the Roman empire in Northern France, Belgium and the Netherlands south of the Rhine. In 358 they were given the status of Foederati. In 451 they sided with Rome against the Huns in what was to be the last major military operation of the Western Roman Empire. This conflict fought near Châlons has become known as the Battle of the Catalaunian Plains, or the Battle of the Campus Mauriacus. The Roman commander Flavius Aetius had assembled a coalition of Franks, Visigoths, Burgundians, Alani, Saxons, Armoricans and Sarmatians to face the troops of Attila, who had allied with the Ostrogoths, Gepids, Rugians, Scirii, Thuringians, Scythians, Bastarnae, Taifals and Alamanni.

The Merovingian dynasty owes its name to the semi-legendary dux Merovech, who is reported to have led the Salian Franks in the Battle of the Catalaunian Plains. The Frankish kings were subject to nominal Roman control but by 481 the grandson of Merovech, Chlodwig or Clovis I had turned against his Roman overlords. By the 490s, he had conquered all the Frankish kingdoms to the west of the River Maas except for the Ripuarian Franks and was in a position to make the city of Paris his capital. He became the first king of all Franks in 509, after he had conquered Cologne. After conquering the Kingdom of Soissons and expelling the Visigoths from southern Gaul at the Battle of Vouillé, he established Frankish hegemony over most of Gaul, excluding Burgundy, Provence and Brittany, which were eventually absorbed by his successors.

had occupied all the major Iberian cities. In 720 they crossed the Pyrenees and occupied Narbonne. In 732 he drove them back into Spain.

In 751, with the approval of the Pope and the nobility, Pepin the Short deposed the last Merovingian king Childeric III and had himself crowned. This inaugurated a new dynasty, the Carolingians. The name Carolingian derives from the Latinised name of Charles (Martel) 'Carolus', the grandfather of Charlemagne. Pepin was officially crowned by the Pope in 754. In the following two years he waged war and twice defeated the Langobards (Lombards) who relinquished territories to Pepin and paid an annual tribute. Pepin died in 768 leaving two sons, Carolman and Charles. Carolman died in 771 leaving Charles (later to become 'Lemagne') as sole ruler. In 774 he invaded Italy where the Langobards had become a threat again. This Clovis I divided his realm between his four sons, who united to defeat Burgundy in 534. Internecine feuding between the sons, grandsons and great-grandsons led to three distinct subkingdoms emerging: Austrasia, Neustria and Burgundy, each of which developed independently and sought to exert influence over the others.

The Frankish realm was reunited in 613 by Chlothar II who granted his nobles the Edict of Paris in an effort to reduce corruption and reassert his authority. Following the military successes of his son and successor Dagobert I, royal authority rapidly declined under a series of kings, traditionally known as les rois fainéants. After the Battle of Tertry in 687, each mayor of the palace, who had formerly been the king's chief household official, effectively held power.

Before he died in 741, Charles Martel had successfully fought the Neustrians, Alamanni, Frisians, Saxons, Thuringians, Bavarians, Burgundians, Aquitanians and the inhabitants of Provence. He also fought the Moors who by 715 time the Langobard kingdom was eliminated and incorporated into the Frankish empire. He also fought a long series of wars against the Saxons who were finally conquered and pacified by 804. Further campaigns were fought in Spain, and further East against the Wends, Slavs and Avars. The latter invaded Friuli and Bavaria but were obliterated in campaigns between 791 and 803.

Charlemagne's empire remained intact until 843 despite three civil wars after Charlemagne died. It was eventually divided among three grandsons in the Treaty of Verdun. Louis received East Francia, the precursor of the Holy Roman Empire. Lothair received Middle Francia, the central portion from the Low Countries to Italy. Charles the Bald received West Francia which later became France. The division into France and Germany occurred after the death of Lothair at the Treaty of Meerssen in 870. The Carolingians ruled in East Francia until 911. In West Francia they ruled intermittently until 987 when the Capetian dynasty supplanted Carolingian rule.

In the course of the 10th century, the initially destructive incursions of Norse war bands into the rivers of France evolved into more permanent encampments. The Duchy of Normandy, which began in 911 as a fiefdom, was established by the treaty of Saint-Clair-sur-Epte between King Charles III of West Francia and the famed Viking ruler Rollo. The treaty offered Rollo and his men the French lands in exchange for their protection against further Viking incursions. The descendants of Rollo's Vikings would replace the Norse religion and Old Norse language with Catholicism and the Gallo-Romance language of the local people. The Normans thereafter adopted the growing feudal doctrines of the rest of France.

MAXIMUS ARMY LISTS

CALCULATING POINTS

Army points are calculated as follows:

GENERALS - MAXIMUS

Type of general	Army Commander		Sub-general		Ally general
	Professional	Instinctive	Professional	Instinctive	Professional	Instinctive
Legendary	1600	1400	n/a	n/a	800	700
Talented	1100	900	850	700	650	600
Competent	700	550	600	450	300	250
Mediocre	250	0	400	250	100	50

CAMPS

Type of camp	Poor	Average	Superior
Unfortified	108	180	252
Fortified	216	360	504
Flexible	180	300	420
Mobile	126	210	294
No camp	378	N/A	N/A

A flexible camp is deployed as a fortified camp when defending and a mobile camp when invading.
No camp deploys a poor mobile camp when defending and no camp at all when invading.

UGs

For each UG multiply the cost shown in the list (adjusting for any optional characteristics) by the number of bases.

NOTES

1. Points values for skirmishers in Magna and Pacto are greater than in Maximus as SuGs shoot at full effect with only two ranks.
2. For further details on how points are calculated visit the Mortem et Gloriam website.

TOLOSAN VISIGOTH

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers the Visigoths in south-west Gaul, through its extension into Spain, from 469 to 478 CE and its loss of the Gallic provinces to the Franks in 507.

TROOP NOTES

Bucellarii were the well-armoured followers of major leaders. Gardingi comprised minor royal officials, lesser gentry, and followers in more traditional Gothic equipment, but now relying more on skirmishing with javelins than on a fierce charge. The initial settlement gave the Visigoths control of the former Roman garrison. These degenerated into city militia.

ARMORICAN OR EARLY BRETON

435 TO 913 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Armorican peninsular revolted from Roman rule in 435 CE. Groups that overthrew Imperial control were known as bacaudae or bagaudae. Despite the campaigns of Aetius, the Armoricans are listed as allies of the Romans at the Battle of the Catalaunian Fields in 451. The local region resisted incursions by the Franks and in the latter half of the 6th century were reinforced by Britons, fleeing the Anglo-Saxon invasions of England. This resulted in the region being known as Brittany. By the 9th century the Bretons were allying with the Vikings to defeat the Carolingians. This however led to the Vikings themselves overthrowing the Breton rulers.

TROOP NOTES

The Bretons appear to have adopted weapons and tactics like other post-Roman states. The interpretation of the Bretons as skirmishing cavalry is now largely discredited.

BASQUE OR EARLY NAVARRESE

470 TO 1035 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

In 778 CE Charlemagne sacked Pamplona as a punishment for Navarrese support for Banu Qasi. In revenge, local troops attacked the Frankish rearguard and defeated them. This started the process leading to the independence of Navarre.

TROOP NOTES

Basque warriors used spears and javelins.

EARLY MEROVINGIAN FRANK

485 TO 561 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

The name Merovingian derives from that of Merovech, of whom nothing is known except that he was the father of Childeric I, who ruled a tribe of Salian Franks from his capital at Tournai. Childeric was succeeded by his son Clovis I in 481 or 482. Clovis I extended his rule over all the Salian Franks, conquered, or annexed the territories of the Riparian Franks and the Alemanni, and united nearly all of Gaul except for Burgundy and what is now Provence. At Clovis I's death in 511, his realm was divided among his four sons, Theuderic I, Chlodomer, Childebert I, and Chlotar I. Despite the frequently bloody competition between the brothers, they managed among them to extend Frankish rule over Thuringia in approximately 531 and Burgundy in 534 and to gain sway over, if not possession of, Septimania on the Mediterranean coast, Bavaria, and the lands of the Saxons to the north. By 558 Chlotar I was the last surviving son of Clovis I, and until his death in 561 the Frankish realm was once again united.

TROOP NOTES

BURGUNDIAN

496 TO 613 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Burgundians were one of the Germanic peoples who filled the power vacuum left by the collapse of the western half of the Roman Empire. In 411 CE, they crossed the Rhine and established a kingdom at Worms. Amidst repeated clashes between the Romans and Huns, the Burgundian kingdom eventually occupied what is today the borderlands between Switzerland, France, and Italy. In 534, the Franks defeated Godomar, the last Burgundian king and took over the country of Burgundy, absorbing the territory into their growing empire. Under the Merovingians, the Kingdom of Burgundy continued to exist. The kingdom re-emerged as a separate state in the 11th century.

TROOP NOTES

Burgundian armies at this time were still mainly infantry but started to make greater use of cavalry under the influence of their neighbours and the Franks in particular.

SWABIAN DUCHIES

539 TO 744 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

In 496 CE, the Suebi (Swabians) were conquered by Frankish leader Clovis and incorporated into his dominions. Mentioned as still-pagan allies of the Christian Franks, the Alemanni were gradually Christianized during the 7th century. The Pactus Alamannorum is a record of their customary law during this period. Until the 8th century, Frankish suzerainty over Swabia was mostly nominal. But after an uprising by Theudebald, Duke of Alamannia, Carloman executed the Alamannic nobility and installed Frankish dukes. During the later and weaker years of the Carolingian Empire the Alamannic counts became almost independent, and a struggle for supremacy took place between them and the Bishopric of Constance. The chief family in Alamannia was that of the counts of Raetia Curiensis, who were sometimes called margraves, and one of whom, Burchard II, established the Duchy of Swabia, which was recognized by Henry the Fowler in 919 and became a stem duchy of the Holy Roman Empire. This list covers the period of Swabian Dukes under Frankish suzerainty.

TROOP NOTES

Swabians appear to have retained a preference for fighting on foot although they could fight mounted on occasion.

AUSTRASIA

562 TO 639 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers the Merovingian heartland split into Austrasia and Neustria after 561, Austrasia being the direct heir of the former central authority. Most external wars were waged by Austrasian armies, notably in Italy and against the Avars. The last Merovingian king being Dagobert, eldest son of Chlothar II. Chlothar had reigned alone over all the Franks since 613. In 623, Chlothar was forced to make Dagobert king of Austrasia by the nobility of that region, who wanted a king of their own. When Chlothar granted Austrasia to Dagobert, he initially excluded Alsace, the Vosges, and the Ardennes, but shortly thereafter the Austrasian nobility forced him to concede these regions to Dagobert. The rule of a Frank from the Austrasian heartland tied Alsace more closely to the Austrasian court. Dagobert created a new duchy (the later Duchy of Alsace) in southwest Austrasia to guard the region from Burgundian or Alamannic encroachments and ambitions.

TROOP NOTES

Austrasia and Neustria retained the fighting techniques of the Merovingian Franks.

NEUSTRIA

HISTORICAL NOTES

Neustria, or Neustrasia, was the western part of the kingdom of the Franks that was created in 511 upon the division of the Merovingian kingdom of Clovis I to his four sons following his death. Merovingian Neustria stretched from the Loire to the Meuse. Neustria was predominantly Gallo-Roman in population, and the form of Latin spoken there, affected by Celtic and Germanic influences, came to be called “Langue d’oil,” the ancestor of modern French.

This list covers Neustrian armies within the Merovingian Frankish kingdom.

TROOP NOTES

Austrasia and Neustria retained the fighting techniques of the Merovingian Franks.

LATER MEROVINGIAN FRANK

HISTORICAL NOTES

Overall Frankish unity was again achieved in 613 CE, when Chlotar II, son of Chilperic I and king of Neustria, inherited Austrasia and Burgundy. On the death of Chlotar’s son Dagobert I in 639, the realm was divided yet again, but by that time the kings of the two regions, Neustria, and Burgundy on the one hand and Austrasia on the other, had been forced to yield much of their power to household officials known as mayors of the palace. The later Merovingian kings were little more than puppets and were enthroned and deposed at will by powerful mayors of the palace. The last Merovingian, Childeric III, was deposed in 750 by Pippin III the Short.

TROOP NOTES

Frankish armies continued to develop cavalry forces of nobles and retainers and the infantry component became less important.

LATER VISIGOTH

622 TO 720 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list continues the Tolosan Visigoths to the Islamic conquest; and then the vassal kings Aqila (711 to 713 CE) and Ardo (713 to 720). After 621 foot were increasingly recruited from conscripted slaves. The Royal army was finally crushed by the Berbers in 711.

TROOP NOTES

Visigothic armies consisted of the royal bodyguards, the bucellarii of the nobles, the gardingi supplied by the lesser nobility, the general levy, and the old Roman population. Cavalry was the main arm although infantry remained a substantial portion of the army.

GALLIA AQUITANIA

HISTORICAL NOTES

Gallia Aquitania fell under Visigothic rule in the 5th century CE. It was conquered by the Franks under Clovis I in 507, because of the Battle of Vouillé. During the 6th and early 7th century, it was under direct rule of Frankish kings, divided between the realms of Childebert II and Guntram in the Treaty of Andelot of 587. Under Chlothar II, Aquitaine was again integral part of Francia, but after Chlothar's death in 628, his heir Dagobert I granted a subkingdom in southern Aquitaine to his younger brother Charibert II. This subkingdom, consisting of Gascony and the southern fringe of Aquitaine proper, is conventionally known as "Aquitaine" and forms the historical basis for the later duchy. Charibert campaigned successfully against the Basques, but after his death in 632, they revolted again. In 635 they were subdued by an army sent by Dagobert (who was at the same time forced to deal with a rebellion in Brittany). This list provides Aquitanian contingents in Merovingian Frankish armies from 507 to 639 CE. It also includes the separate sub-kingdom of Aquitania from 628 to 632 CE.

TROOP NOTES

The troops of Gallia Aquitania were Frankish but with a mix of old Visigothic, Roman and Basque influence.

HISTORICAL ENEMIES

Basque or Early Navarrese 3403.

CHARLES MARTEL FRANK

718 TO 741 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

Charles Martel (from the Latin Carolus Martellus) was a Frankish statesman and military leader who as Duke and Prince of the Franks and Mayor of the Palace, was de facto ruler of Francia from 718 CE until his death. He defeated the Moors at the Battle of Tours in 732, considered a landmark battle that marked the high tide of the Muslim advance into Europe. The armies of Charles Martel can also be represented by a Later Merovingian Frank army depending upon the tactics used.

TROOP NOTES

An internal ally can represent Odo of Aquitaine. Aquitanian troops at this time seem to have followed the same tactical doctrine as other Franks so are treated as an internal ally.

ASTUR-LEONESE

718 TO 1037 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

With the beginning of the Moorish conquest in the 8th century CE, the region of Asturia became a refuge for Christians, and in 722, a de facto independent kingdom was established, the Regnum Asturorum. In the 10th century, the Kingdom of Asturias gave way to the Kingdom of León. This list covers the Christian armies in the northwest of modern Spain from the founding of the Asturian kingdom in 718 to the death of Bermudo III in the battle of Tamarón in 1037.

TROOP NOTES

Astur-Leonese armies reflected a Visigothic heritage, influenced by the military traditions of northern Spain.

CAROLINGIAN

741 TO 888 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Carolingian Dynasty was a dynasty of rulers who began as Mayors of the Palace and eventually became kings of the Franks. It is perhaps most noteworthy as the dynasty which resurrected the idea of a Western Roman Empire. The Carolingians succeeded the Merovingian Dynasty. This list covers Frankish armies from the death of Charles Martel, until the final partition of Charlemagne's empire. Separate lists exist for Charles Martel and Charlemagne.

The name Carolingian itself comes from Charles Martel (from the Latin Carolus Martellus). The dynasty's most prominent member is Charlemagne. The last Carolingian emperor died in 899 CE.

TROOP NOTES

Carolingian armies continued to see the development of shock cavalry tactics. Elite units first appearing in the 7th century were known as scarae. They seem to have been largely royal vassals.

CHARLEMAGNE CAROLINGIAN

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Carolingian dynasty's most prominent member is Charlemagne, or Charles the Great (in Latin, Carolus Magnus), who was crowned Holy Roman Emperor in 800. Under Charlemagne the empire expanded on all frontiers. His descendants could not keep such a wide area under control and spent much of their efforts fighting each other for supremacy.

TROOP NOTES

Carolingian armies continued to see the development of shock cavalry tactics. There was a steady increase in the use of cavalry throughout the Carolingian period.

EARLY HOLY ROMAN EMPIRE

933 TO 1106 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers East Frankia from the ascension of Otto I the Great. It saw the creation of the Holy Roman Empire, a title recognised by the Byzantine emperor in 972. It ends with the rise of the medieval knight. Henry the Fowler successfully united the Duchies of Saxony, Bavaria, Swabia and East Frankia and added the Duchy of Lotharingia (Belgium, Luxembourg, Alsace and Eastern Lorraine) taken from France.

TROOP NOTES

As in France, the nucleus of the army consisted of the feudal vassals of the king and nobility. Ecclesiastical lands also maintained troops by the same means. Henry the Fowler introduced major reform to the military. One reform was “Burgenordnung”, instead of all peasants being liable to military service one in nine was selected and supported by the other eight. He also encouraged castle building to hinder enemy raiding.

BRETON

HISTORICAL NOTES

In 935, Alan Twistedbeard, who had been in exile, landed in Brittany to reconquer his domain. By 937, he had reconquered most of Brittany and the Norseman retreated to their stronghold of Trans-la-Forêt. In 939, a combined army of Frankish and Breton soldiers attacked the fortress and eliminated the Norseman threat in Brittany. He paid tribute as duke of Brittany to king Louis IV of France in 942. From this point Brittany became a Duchy with various levels of fealty to West Francia and eventually France.

TROOP NOTES

Breton armies seem to have relied less on shock cavalry tactics than their Frankish neighbours.

NORMAN

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Duchy of Normandy, which began in 911 CE as a fiefdom, was established by the treaty of Saint-Clair-sur-Epte between King Charles III of West Francia and the famed Viking ruler Rollo and was situated in the former Frankish kingdom of Neustria. It became a formal Duchy between 987 and 1006. The Normans adopted the growing feudal doctrines of the rest of France and worked them into a functional hierarchical system. They developed the style of fighting on horseback with a lance that developed into the Medieval knight. Shortage of land led bands of Normans to offer their services as mercenaries and establish a kingdom in Southern Italy. It also provided the core of the army that Duke William used to invade England in 1066.

TROOP NOTES

The Normans started as Vikings but seem to have readily adopted Frankish shock cavalry tactics. Cavalry are recorded as early as 923 CE.

NORMANS IN ITALY AND SICILY

HISTORICAL NOTES

Until the early 1040s, the Normans were mercenaries or allies of the Lombard princes. From 1042 onwards William Ironarm and other Norman lords started taking over the cities in southern Italy from the Byzantines and Lombards and ruling them themselves. During this period, the Normans remained allied to the Lombards of Salerno. Indeed, Guaimar of Salerno remained on close terms with the Normans until his death in 1052 when he and his brothers were murdered for not joining the Papal alliance against the Normans. The Norman intervention in Sicily in 1061 began when the Normans allied with Ibn al-Thumma against his Muslim rivals on the island. The Normans gradual conquest of the towns of Sicily over the next decade, culminating in the capture of Palermo in 1072, was also helped by Sicilian Greeks.

TROOP NOTES

The army at Civitate consisted of 3,000 cavalry and 500 infantry. It is unlikely the army was all Normans. The cavalry were most likely Norman, although perhaps some might have been Lombards. More feasibly the foot could have been Italians drawn from the towns of southern Italy taken and ruled by the Normans.

Norman cavalry would on occasion throw their lances. On other occasions they seem to have equipped their squires with javelins to soften up the enemy before launching charges with the lance armed milites.
