CREATING AN ARMY WITH THE MORTEM ET GLORIAM ARMY LISTS

Use the army lists to create your own customised armies using the Mortem et Gloriam Army Builder.

There are few general rules to follow:

1. An army must have at least 2 generals and can have no more than 4.
2. You must take at least the minimum of any troops noted and may not go beyond the maximum of any.
3. No army may have more than two generals who are Talented or better.
4. Unless specified otherwise, all elements in a UG must be classified identically. Unless specified otherwise, if an optional characteristic is taken, it must be taken by all the elements in the UG for which that optional characteristic is available.
5. Any UGs can be downgraded by one quality grade and/or by one shooting skill (Skilled to Experienced or Experienced to Unskilled) representing less strong, tired, or understrength troops. If any bases are downgraded all in the UG must be downgraded. So Average-Experienced skirmishers can always be downgraded to Poor-Unskilled.
6. Points are shown for troops with all mandatory characteristics applied. Points have been rounded to the nearest whole number. If quality or shooting skill is downgraded, then the points (including the points for any optional characteristics) will need to be adjusted.
7. An army entirely of Cavalry, Chariots, Camelry or Infantry with the Dismountable characteristic may choose the No Camp option.

Where allies are allowed, they must conform to the following rules:

1. An ally must be a minimum of 2 and a maximum of 4 UGs.
2. They must take enough UGs to get them to at least 50% of the minimums in the list being used.
3. They can thereafter take any troops up to the maximum to create the rest of the allied contingent.
4. Unless specified in the notes, the general must be the same type as the army commander in their own army's list but cannot be legendary.

Usually this results in 1-3 UGs being compulsory and you having full flexibility on the rest.

Where an internal ally is allowed, and no contingent is specified they must conform to the following rules:

1. Each internal ally must be a minimum of 2 and a maximum of 4 UGs.
2. The total number of troops taken of each type in the entire army must not exceed the maxima for that troop type.
3. They must take enough UGs to get them to at least 50% of the minimums in the list if there is enough allowance for a UG after the core army itself has taken the minimum. For example: An army has 4-12 cavalry (UG size 4,6) and 18-32 spearmen (UG size 6,8,9) as compulsory troops with 2 internal allies. The core army must take 4 cavalry and at least 18 spearmen. The first ally must take 4 cavalry and at least 9 spearmen. The second ally must take 4 cavalry but cannot take the 9 spearmen as this would exceed the 32 spearmen limit for the army.

4. If a list requires a proportion of a troop type to be upgraded or regraded, then the army as a whole must comply with this requirement. Internal allies do not have to comply these requirements. For example: $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ of Turcomans must be upgraded from Experienced to Skilled shooting. An internal ally might have all Experienced as long as the army as a whole has $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ Skilled.
5. They can thereafter take any troops up to the maximum to create the rest of the allied contingent.

Usually this results in 1-3 UGs being compulsory and you having full flexibility on the rest.

As a courtesy to your opponent when you deploy your troops, you should describe each UG fully; type, training, quality, protection, melee weaponry, shooting skill and weaponry and characteristics. You should also explain how any unusual troop types in your army function and any special rules including Stakes, Caltrops, Barricades and Obstacles and troop types such as Battle Wagons.

The easiest way to calculate points is to use the downloadable on-line army builder at www.mortem-et-gloriam.co.uk. Use this and all you do is use drop downs for the troop classifications and it does all the work for you. For those who prefer pen and paper, or who want to doodle some approximate designs before loading an army up, we have provided the points values with the lists. If a discrepancy exists in the points values between these lists and the army builder, then the army builder has the correct value.

FRIENDLY AND SCENARIO GAMES

Feel free to vary the troop classifications for friendly and scenario games. An interesting aspect of scenario games can be to see what the effect is from representing troops in a different manner.

HISTORICAL INTRODUCTION

Throughout this period Germany consisted of a collection of independent states comprising of four main regions; Franconia - the portion of Germany held by the Franks - Saxony, Swabia and Bavaria. The title of Emperor was first used by the Frankish king Charlemagne when he was crowned by Pope Leo III on 25th December 800. It was revived in 962 by Otto I, fashioning himself after Charlemagne. Through the conquests of Otto, the Emperors also controlled large parts of northern Italy.

The term “Holy Roman Empire” was not used until the 13th century. The office of Holy Roman Emperor was traditionally elective. The German prince-electors, the highest-ranking noblemen and three Archbishops elected one of their peers as “King of the Romans”. To become Emperor, he needed to be crowned by the Pope. Many of the kings were never crowned Emperor.

The main powers in the Empire were the nobility; the church and the free cities. The nobility was under no obligation to supply contingents to the Imperial armies except in the feudal holdings of the King or Emperor. Only the princes of the church, appointed by the King, owed him military service. Any other contributions needed the approval of the Imperial Diet or parliament. This generally required extensive negotiation and/or bribery.

The electors generally preferred a weak king who was no threat to their own power base. On occasion, the electors chose two different candidates resulting in a civil war.

During the 12th and 13th centuries many cities were granted free status by the Emperor. These “imperial free cities” were no longer controlled by the local lord. On occasions these cities would combine to form a City League. The most notable was the Hanseatic league which controlled much of the trade in Northern Europe and the Baltic. It became powerful enough to fight and win a war against the Danish.

Pope John XII and Otto I ratified the Diploma Ottonianum by which the Emperor guaranteed the independence of the Papal states. Over the next two centuries, popes and emperors squabbled over a variety of issues. The Guelphs and Ghibellines were factions supporting the Pope and the Holy Roman Emperor, respectively. The division developed its own dynamic in the politics of medieval Italy, and it persisted long after the direct confrontation between Emperor and Pope had ceased. By 1300, the Papal States, along with the rest of the Italian principalities, were effectively independent.

The failure of negotiations between Emperor Louis IV and the papacy led in 1338 to the declaration at Rhense by six electors to the effect that election by all or the majority of the electors automatically conferred the royal title and rule over the empire, without papal confirmation. As result, the monarch was no longer subject to papal approbation and became increasingly dependent on the favour of the electors. Between 1346 and 1378 Emperor Charles IV of Luxembourg, king of Bohemia, sought to restore the imperial authority. The Golden Bull of 1356 stipulated that in future the emperor was to be chosen by four secular electors and three spiritual electors. The secular electors were the King of Bohemia, the Count Palatine of the Rhine, the Duke of Saxony, and the Margrave of Brandenburg; the three spiritual electors were the Archbishops of Mainz, Trier, and Cologne.

Around 1350 Germany along with the rest of Europe was ravaged by the Black Death.

From 1438 the Habsburgs, who controlled most of the southeast of the Empire, maintained a constant grip on the position of the Holy Roman Emperor. During his reign from 1493 to 1519, Maximilian I tried to reform the Empire but was frustrated by the continued territorial fragmentation of the Empire. Through his marriage to Mary of Burgundy the Habsburgs eventually acquired control of the Low Countries. The growth of Habsburg power became a threat to the Swiss. The Swabian War of 1499 resulted in the Swiss defeating Maximilian at the Battle of Dornach and confirmed their independence.

In 1197 the German emperors of the Hohenstaufen line inherited the kingdom of Sicily. In 1266 Charles of Anjou conquered the kingdom but they were ousted from the island of Sicily by the Aragonese.

In the 14th century, Northern Italy and upper Central Italy were divided into warring city-states, the most powerful being Milan, Florence, Pisa, Siena, Genoa, Ferrara, Mantua, Verona and Venice. During the 15th century, the most powerful city-states annexed their smaller neighbours. Florence, Milan and Venice emerge as the dominant players, and these three powers finally set aside their differences and agreed to the Peace of Lodi in 1454. The foreign invasions of Italy known as the Italian Wars began with the 1494 invasion by France that wreaked widespread devastation on Northern Italy and ended the independence of many of the city-states. Originally arising from dynastic disputes over the Duchy of Milan and the Kingdom of Naples, the wars rapidly became a general struggle for power and territory among their various participants including the King of France and Maximilian I, Holy Roman Emperor.

MAXIMUS ARMY LISTS

CALCULATING POINTS

Army points are calculated as follows:

GENERALS - MAXIMUS

Type of general	Army Commander		Sub-general		Ally general
	Professional	Instinctive	Professional	Instinctive	Professional	Instinctive
Legendary	1600	1400	n/a	n/a	800	700
Talented	1100	900	850	700	650	600
Competent	700	550	600	450	300	250
Mediocre	250	0	400	250	100	50

CAMPS

Type of camp	Poor	Average	Superior
Unfortified	108	180	252
Fortified	216	360	504
Flexible	180	300	420
Mobile	126	210	294
No camp	378	N/A	N/A

A flexible camp is deployed as a fortified camp when defending and a mobile camp when invading.
No camp deploys a poor mobile camp when defending and no camp at all when invading.

UGs

For each UG multiply the cost shown in the list (adjusting for any optional characteristics) by the number of bases.

NOTES

1. Points values for skirmishers in Magna and Pacto are greater than in Maximus as SuGs shoot at full effect with only two ranks.
2. For further details on how points are calculated visit the Mortem et Gloriam website.

EARLY COMMUNAL ITALIAN

1029 TO 1149 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

During this period many urban Italian Republics established their autonomy by taking advantage of the disputes between the Papacy and the Holy Roman Emperor. Communes supporting the Pope became known as "Guelfs", those supporting the emperor as "Ghibellines". Smaller towns tended to protect their independence by taking the opposite side to their larger neighbours.

TROOP NOTES

In the towns of Northern Italy, the city militia was the nucleus of military organisation. The contado, the surrounding rural districts, supplemented the troops of the commune. A Superior camp represents a Carroccio and its guard.

SCENARIO RULES - DOES NOT APPLY TO TOURNAMENT GAMES

A carroccio and its guard may be represented by a mobile superior camp in addition to the normal camp. The carracio may be 1BW by 2BW and the normal rules for a mobile camp apply for movement and fighting. If sacked, treat as for a sacked camp but roll one dice higher than normal for the KaB tests. During the End of Turn phase, a single UG may recover a wound, without requiring a card, if the carroccio is within 10 BW and hasn't been sacked. The usual restrictions for camp deployment do not apply to the carroccio but it must be deployed in the player's deployment area.

PAPAL ITALIAN

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers the period from the accession of Leo IX until the rise of the condottieri.

TROOP NOTES

The Papacy could only rely on small forces from its own lands and had to rely on contingents from Perugia, the Romagna, the Ancona marches, Tuscany, Spoleto, and its neighbours. The communes did not regard themselves as being under any obligation to supply troops and might supply money for the employment of mercenaries. Mercenaries of various origins were employed throughout this period.

NORMAN SICILIAN

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers Sicily and southern Italy from Norman conquest of Sicily until death of William II. It also covers rebellions against Frederick's II rule until 1212. The Norman rulers tolerated both their Muslim and Greek population and the mass of the infantry were drawn from the Muslims.

Robert Guiscard campaigned against the Byzantines from 1081 until his death in 1085. In 1091 Roger I conquered Malta to avoid an attack from North Africa. When William II of Apulia died childless in July 1127, Roger claimed all Hauteville possessions in southern Italy and the principality of Capua. This union of Sicily and Apulia was resisted and led to a series of rebellions.

By 1140, Sicily was one of the greatest kingdoms in Europe. From 1135, a series of invasions of Tunisia were undertaken but these conquests were subsequently lost. Unable to establish an African dominion, later attacks were directed at the Byzantines. An invasion fleet was directed at the Ayyubid Egyptians but departed upon the approach of Saladin.

In 1189 William II died childless. Tancred, and illegitimate son of the Norman duke Roger III of Apulia claimed the throne, denying the rights of his Aunt Constance who was the daughter of the late King Roger II. His son William III was crowned co-ruler at the age of four. When Tancred died in 1194, Emperor Henry VI claimed the throne on behalf of his wife Constance. Henry VI's son Frederick II faced rebellions up until 1212 CE.

TROOP NOTES

Experience fighting horse archers both for and against the Byzantines encouraged the adoption of full mail armour.

The Saracens from whom the Normans took Sicily became loyal troops.

HUNGARIAN

HISTORICAL NOTES

During the 12th and 13th centuries Hungary was ruled by the Arpad dynasty. Due to extensive silver mines, the kingdom was wealthy. In 1195, King Béla III expanded the Hungarian kingdom southward and westward to Bosnia and Dalmatia and extended suzerainty over Serbia, a process that helped to break up the Byzantine Empire and diminish its influence in the Balkan region. In 1211 King Andrew II granted Burzenland to the Teutonic knights, but in 1225 expelled them from Transylvania. Andrew led the largest royal army in history during the fifth crusade. In 1241 to 1242, the kingdom of Hungary suffered a major blow in the wake of the Mongol invasion of Europe. As a result of the Mongols, some 40,000 Cumans sought sanctuary in Hungary. In response to the Mongol invasion, the King built hundreds of stone castles. This over-stretched the Royal finances and weakened the power of the king but was successful in repelling the second Mongol invasion of 1286 and provide useful in fighting the Ottomans. At the death of Andrew III in 1301 the House of Arpad ended. A civil war lasted seven years as various claimants fought for the throne.

TROOP NOTES

Military service in Hungary was owed to the nobleman, known as ipsans, who formed a warrior aristocracy. The king often had to rely on foreign mercenaries, often Italians or Germans, to protect himself and these became the core of the army. Asiatic auxiliaries, initially Pechenegs and later Cumans remained a major element in the Hungarian army. The Pechenegs were referred to as Bisseni by the Hungarians. The Szeklers continued to guard the eastern frontiers of the kingdom.

SCENARIO RULES - DOES NOT APPLY TO TOURNAMENT GAMES

In 1167 CE, a carroccio and its guard may be represented by a mobile superior camp in addition to the normal camp. The carracio may be 1BW by 2BW and the normal rules for a mobile camp apply for movement and fighting. If sacked, treat as for a sacked camp but roll one dice higher than normal for the KaB tests. During the End of Turn phase, a single UG may recover a wound, without requiring a card, if the carroccio is within 10 BW and hasn't been sacked. The usual restrictions for camp deployment do not apply to the carroccio but it must be deployed in the player's deployment area.

EARLY IMPERIAL GERMAN

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers Imperial German armies before Frederick I Barbarossa. A king only become Emperor if crowned by the Pope. The Empire was an alliance of separate states. Imperial armies often contained feudal or ecclesiastical contingents. Raising imperial troops meant obtaining approval from the Imperial Diet or parliament. This was a painfully difficult process, and few Emperors exerted enough power to bring the states into line. Heinrich (Henry) V became Holy Roman Emperor in 1106. In 1122 Pope Callixtus II and Emperor Henry V agreed the Concordat of Worms. This differentiated between the royal and spiritual powers resulting in a largely independent church and weakening the power of the emperor.

TROOP NOTES

Germany was essentially a confederation of petty states led by princely families of tribal origin, of whom very few held their lands as vassals of the crown. Only the princes of the church were obliged to render the emperor military service.

FEUDAL GERMAN

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers the armies of the major autonomous states and dynasties that constituted the German Empire. Strictly Germany did not follow feudalism. Unlike the princes of the church, lay princes were not obliged to provide troops to the emperor. Some lords expanded into Slavic areas and in this way Silesia and Pomeria were added to the Empire. The largest battles occurred when two alliances elected opposing kings. This was especially true during the interregnum from 1254 to 1273.

TROOP NOTES

Ministeriales were originally unfree milites owning no land. By the mid-13th century their status had increased to become part of the nobility. Most troops were raised on a feudal basis from estates and unfree cities. Ecclesiastical allies were often used. Alliances with free imperial cities were rarer. The use of mercenaries was initially rare but increased during the interregnum.

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Lombard League was formed in about 1176 to counter Emperor Freiderich I Barbarossa. It also opposed Freiderich II before being dissolved in 1250. Members included Milan, Piacenza, Cremona, Mantua, Bergamo, Brescia, Bologna, Padua, Treviso, Vicenza, Venice, Verona, Lodi and Parma.

TROOP NOTES

From the start of the 12th century the use of mercenaries in Northern Italy increased. Despite this, militia survived in regular and effective use well into the 14th century. The popolo evolved in many cities as elite bodies of militia infantry to control the power of a town's own magnates and the ambitions of its aristocracy. A superior camp represents the Carroccio and its defenders.

SCENARIO RULES - DOES NOT APPLY TO TOURNAMENT GAMES

A carroccio and its guard may be represented by a mobile superior camp in addition to the normal camp. The carracio may be 1BW by 2BW and the normal rules for a mobile camp apply for movement and fighting. If sacked, treat as for a sacked camp but roll one dice higher than normal for the KaB tests. During the End of Turn phase, a single UG may recover a wound, without requiring a card, if the carroccio is within 10 BW and hasn't been sacked. The usual restrictions for camp deployment do not apply to the carroccio but it must be deployed in the player's deployment area.

IMPERIAL GERMAN

HISTORICAL NOTES

In 1152 Friederich I "Barbarossa" came to the throne. His rule started a period of prosperity. He re-established the Roman rule of law that counterbalanced the papal power that dominated the German states since the Concordat of Worms. As well as being crowned Roman Emperor in 1155, he was King of Italy and in 1178 King of Burgundy. He died in 1190 in Asia Minor while leading an army in the Third Crusade. His son Henry VI seized Norman lower Italy and Sicily in 1194. In 1198 two opposing kings were elected and fought over the crown until 1208. In 1215 Friederich II overcame resistance and seized the crown. He was crowned Emperor in 1220. The papacy felt his rule of Germany and attempts to strengthen control of Sicily was a threat. In 1228 he went on Crusade and seized Jerusalem from the Egyptian Sultan without shedding blood. He attempted to control northern Italy with limited success and to do so granted many privileges in Germany which weakened the Imperial position. Between 1254 and 1273 there was no king. Burgundy came under French influence and much of Italy freed itself from German rule. The decline was only partly reversed by Henry VII who came to the throne in 1308. Between 1314 and 1322 the Empire was contested until Louis IV emerged victorious. He however was in dispute with the Pope and had to have himself crowned as Holy Roman Emperor by a senator in 1328. This led to the declaration at Rhense in 1338 by six electors to the effect that election by all or most of the electors automatically conferred the royal title and rule over the empire, without papal confirmation. The difficulties in electing the king eventually led to the emergence of a fixed college of prince-electors (Kurfürsten), whose composition and procedures were set forth in the Golden Bull of 1356. The emperor now was to be elected by a majority rather than by consent of all seven electors. For electors the title became hereditary.

TROOP NOTES

Frederick I sought to reorganise German feudalism on the model of France. Most of his successors were unable to maintain their hold on the nobility. The emperors tended to rely on their personal retinues that could include large numbers of mercenaries.

MEDIEVAL FRISIAN OR DITHMARSCHEN

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers the Medieval Frisians, the Stedinger and the Dithmarschen. Frisia was full of ditches and marshland and proved very difficult for outsiders to conquer. The Count of Holland captured West Frisia by establishing castles at strategic points. Frisians often fought amongst themselves.

TROOP NOTES

Frisian warriors are always described as impetuous, seldom standing in defence. This ceased during the 15th century. They carried a long spear with a fork to enable them to cross ditches by vaulting.

HOHENSTAUFEN SICILIAN

HISTORICAL NOTES

After William II of Sicily died without male heirs, the German King Henry VI claimed the throne through his wife Constantine, daughter of Roger II. Henry was succeeded in 1197 by his son Frederick II who grew up in Sicily before being crowned German king in 1212 and Holy Roman Emperor in 1220. He spent most of his time in Sicily, putting down rebellious lords and fighting the Saracens. Many Saracens were settled in colonies in mainland Italy. Frederick fell out with the papacy and despite being excommunicated, went on crusade in 1228 (the Sixth Crusade) to enforce his claim through marriage to the crown of Jerusalem. Through negotiations with the Ayyubids he achieved the restoration of Jerusalem, but he was unpopular with the local Franks and returned to Europe. In 1237 he defeated the Second Lombard League at Cortenouva, but warfare against the Guelphs continued throughout the remainder of his life. In 1250 he was succeeded by his brother Manfred who was to lose his life at the battle of Benevento fighting Charles of Anjou in 1266. The Hohenstaufen claim to Sicily ended with the death of Conrad in 1268 after the battle of Tagliacozzo.

TROOP NOTES

Best knights represent Imperial or the best German mercenary knights. It can also represent Teutonic knights in the Holy Land in 1228 and 1229. 20,000 Saracens were settled in Apulia and forces of up to 10,000 appeared in Sicilian armies at Cortenouva and Benevento. Most were archers, but contemporary illustrations also show javelins, swords, axes, and maces. Saracen light horse are mentioned at Benevento. Illustrations show mounted archers, but these might be mounted guards who fought on foot. Frederick is said to have created Saracen knights so the occasional Saracen figure in a knight element may be justified.

HOHENSTAUFEN GERMAN

HISTORICAL NOTES

In 1257 Manfred had declared himself king of Sicily. Pope Clement IV, determined to check the growing power of Manfred. He excommunicated him and encouraged Charles of Anjou to invade Italy. Charles defeated Manfred at the Battle of Benevento in 1266 and captured the Kingdom of Sicily. Manfred's 16-year-old nephew Conradin invaded Italy supported by Tuscan Ghibellines. Conradin's army included Spanish knights. After considerable manoeuvre, Conradin's invading army confronted that of Charles of Anjou outside the town of Tagliacozzo. Conradin's forces won the initial phase of the battle, and broke up to pursue Charles's first two divisions, which were in flight, and pillage the Angevin camp. At this point Charles sprung his trap, his hidden reserve forces entering the fight and massacring Conradin's scattered forces. Conradin was forced to flee back to Rome, but was later captured, imprisoned, and executed. This ended the rule of the Hohenstaufens.

Constance of Sicily, eldest daughter of Manfred had married Peter III of Aragon in 1262. She became heir to the kingdom of Sicily. This led to the Aragonese invasion of Sicily in 1282 and its capture from Charles of Anjou.

TROOP NOTES

Conrad's army of 1268 was a mix of the personal retinue of the Hohenstaufens, Spanish troops and the forces of their Italian supporters.

ANGEVIN SICILIAN

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers the armies of Charles of Anjou and his successors after the defeat of the Hohenstaufen army of Conradin at Tagliacozzo in 1268. Sicily was lost to the Aragonese but peace in 1302 left Naples in Angevin hands. The mainland part was contemporaneously called the Kingdom of Sicily but is known to modern scholarship as the Kingdom of Naples.

TROOP NOTES

Charles had to rely on his French supporters to hold Sicily. Angevin armies in Sicily were like earlier armies except that the numbers of Saracens had declined significantly.

HISTORICAL ENEMIES

ARAGONESE SICILIAN

1282 TO 1442 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers Sicily from the revolt in 1282 CE which led to the War of Sicilian Vespers until the union with Naples in 1442. It excludes the mainland remnant of the "Kingdom of Sicily" which is covered by the Angevin Sicilian list and then by the Italian Condotta list. Growing opposition to French officialdom and high taxation led to the insurrection which was successful with the support of Peter III of Aragon, who was crowned King of Sicily by the island's barons. Charles, duke of Anjou continued to rule the mainland part. The separate island kingdom became known as the Kingdom of Trinacria. For the whole of the 14th century, Sicily was essentially an independent kingdom, ruled by relatives of the kings of Aragon.

TROOP NOTES

Peter III brought with him a large force of Catalans to fight the War of Sicilian Vespers. Many transferred to Byzantine service as the notorious Catalan Grand Company.

MEDIEVAL GERMAN CITY LEAGUE

1300 TO 1440 CE

HISTORICAL NOTES

From 1100, new towns were founded around imperial strongholds, castles, bishops' palaces, and monasteries. The towns began to establish municipal rights and liberties first developed by Otto I and based on Flemish law. The Hanseatic League grew from a few North German towns in the late 1100s and came to dominate Baltic maritime trade. Between 1361 and 1370, the Hanseatic League waged war against Denmark. Initially unsuccessful, in 1368 the League allied with the Confederation of Cologne to sack Copenhagen and Helsingborg. In the peace treaty of Stralsund in 1370 they forced Valdemar IV, King of Denmark, and his son-in-law Haakon VI, King of Norway, to grant the league 15% of the profits from Danish trade. This favourable treaty marked the height of Hanseatic power. After the Danish-Hanseatic War (1426–1435) and the Bombardment of Copenhagen (1428), the commercial privileges were renewed in the Treaty of Vordingborg in 1435. The first Swabian League was formed in 1331 by 22 imperial cities. They were defeated by Count Eberhard II of Württemberg in 1372 and a new league of 14 cities formed in 1376. They were joined by cities in the Franconian heartland and by 1385 included 32 cities. In 1388 they were defeated at Döffingen. The next year the city league was disbanded.

TROOP NOTES

The City Leagues tended to rely on a combination of mercenaries and town militias for their defence.

EARLY ITALIAN CONDOTTA

HISTORICAL NOTES

In the 14th century, Northern Italy and upper Central Italy were divided into many warring city-states, the most powerful being Milan, Florence, Pisa, Siena, Genoa, Ferrara, Mantua, Verona, and Venice. Keeping both direct Church control and Imperial power at arm's length, the many independent city states prospered through commerce. Italy saw the rise of numerous Maritime Republics, the most notable being Venice, Genoa, Pisa, and Amalfi. Venice and Genoa soon became Europe's main gateways to trade with the East. The Italian trade routes that covered the Mediterranean and beyond were major conduits of culture and knowledge. The city-states of Italy expanded greatly during this period and grew in power to become de facto fully independent of the Holy Roman Empire. The Black Death in 1348 inflicted a terrible blow to Italy, killing perhaps one third of the population. The recovery from the demographic and economic disaster led to a resurgence of cities, trade and economy that was to lead to the Renaissance.

TROOP NOTES

On land, these wars were primarily fought by armies of mercenaries known as condottieri, bands of soldiers drawn from around Europe, but especially Germany and Switzerland, led largely by Italian captains. The mercenaries were not willing to risk their lives unduly, and war became one largely of sieges and manoeuvring, occasioning few pitched battles. It was also in the interest of mercenaries on both sides to prolong any conflict, to continue their employment. Mercenaries were also a constant threat to their employers; if not paid, they often turned on their patron; this happened on several occasions.

A superior camp can represent the Carroccio and its defenders.

Only one external ally may be taken.

SCENARIO RULES - DOES NOT APPLY TO TOURNAMENT GAMES

A carroccio and its guard may be represented by a mobile superior camp in addition to the normal camp. The carracio may be 1BW by 2BW and the normal rules for a mobile camp apply for movement and fighting. If sacked, treat as for a sacked camp but roll one dice higher than normal for the KaB tests. During the End of Turn phase, a single UG may recover a wound, without requiring a card, if the carroccio is within 10 BW and hasn't been sacked. The usual restrictions for camp deployment do not apply to the carroccio but it must be deployed in the player's deployment area.

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers the armies of the major autonomous states and dynasties that constituted the German Empire from 1320 CE. The kings of the 15th century starting with Sigismund of Luxemburg king 1410, emperor 1433 to 1437 tended to neglect the empire and focus on their own lands. Simultaneously, the Catholic Church experienced crises of its own, with several papal claimants.

TROOP NOTES

During this period there was little to distinguish Imperial armies from the armies of the other powerful lords.

KINGDOM OF NAPLES

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers the Kingdom of Naples, officially known as the Kingdom of Sicily. In 1421 the childless Queen Joanna II of Naples adopted and named Alfonso V of Aragon as heir to the Kingdom of Naples. His rival claimant, Louis III of Anjou contested the crown. In 1423 Alfonso's relationship with Joanna deteriorated to the extent he tried to arrest her. She repudiated her earlier adoption of Alfonso and named Louis III as her heir instead. Joanna and Louis secured the kingdom, but true power was in the hands of Gianni Caracciolo. He died in 1432, Louis in 1434 and Joanna in 1435. Joanna named René, the younger brother of Louis as her heir. Alfonso invaded in 1436 and by 1442 had evicted the forces of René who returned to Provence. At his death in 1458, Sicily was again separated, and Naples was inherited by Ferrante, Alfonso's illegitimate son who ruled until 1494. This was used as a pretext by the French to start the Italian Wars.

TROOP NOTES

The Kingdom's army was Feudal and traditional until it began to be replaced under Alfonso. He built up the army so that by 1490s it was reckoned to be the strongest in Italy. The troops were mainly Italians with some Spaniards, chiefly crossbowmen, and artillery from Aragon.

ITALIAN CONDOTTA

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers the Italian states except the Kingdom of Naples and Republic of Venice. During the 15th century, the most powerful city-states annexed their smaller neighbours. Florence took Pisa in 1406, Venice captured Padua and Verona, while the Duchy of Milan annexed several nearby areas including Pavia and Parma. Warfare between the states was common, invasion from outside Italy confined to intermittent sorties of Holy Roman Emperors. On land, decades of fighting saw Florence, Milan and Venice emerge as the dominant players, and these three powers finally set aside their differences and agreed to the Peace of Lodi in 1454, which saw relative calm brought to the region for the first time in centuries. The foreign invasions of Italy known as the Italian Wars began with the 1494 invasion by France that wreaked widespread devastation on Northern Italy and ended the independence of many of the city-states. Originally arising from dynastic disputes over the Duchy of Milan and the Kingdom of Naples, the wars rapidly became a general struggle for power and territory among their various participants, marked with an increasing number of alliances, counter-alliances, and betrayals.

TROOP NOTES

The condottieri were mercenary captains named after their contracts of employment, called condotte. The contract specified the number of troops they were required to provide. The companies of the condottieri were supplemented by provisionati hired directly by the state. The role of communal militia declined during this period.

REPUBLIC OF VENICE

HISTORICAL NOTES

This list covers the armies of the Republic of Venice in Italy and Dalmatia. In the early 15th century, the Venetians expanded their possessions in North Italy and had taken over important cities such as Verona and Padua. The difficulties of Hungary allowed the Republic to consolidate its Adriatic dominions. Under doge Francesco Foscari (1423 to 1457) the city reached the height of its power and territorial extent. In 1425 a war broke out against Milan. The victory at the Battle of Maclodio expanded Venetian territory to the River Adda. In 1446 the Republic had to fight an alliance formed by Milan, Florence, Bologna and Cremona. A victory allowed Venice to occupy Lodi and Piacenza. By diplomacy they acquired Brescia and Vicenza.

After the fall of Byzantium, Venice became embroiled in wars against the Ottomans. In 1482 Venice allied with Pope Sixtus IV in his attempt to conquer Ferrara, opposed to Florence, Naples, Milan, and Ercole d'Este. Defeated at the Battle of Campomorto, Sixtus switched sides. Peace was agreed in 1484. Despite the setbacks in the struggle against the Turks, at the end of the 15th century, Venice was the second largest city in Europe.

TROOP NOTES

Although Venetian ambitions were focused mostly to the east, Venice maintained one of the best trained and largest militia in Italy at this time.

HISTORICAL NOTES

From 1438 the Habsburgs controlled the position of "King of the Romans". In 1452 Frederick III was crowned Holy Roman Emperor. This situation, however, resulted in increased disunity among the Holy Roman Empire's territorial rulers and prevented sections of the country from coming together to form nations in the manner of France and England. One of Frederick's main achievements was to arrange the marriage of the daughter of Charles the Bold, Mary to his son Maximilian. This would ultimately result in the Habsburgs acquiring control of the Low Countries.

TROOP NOTES

The quality of German knights declined substantially during this period. This was due to land holdings being fragmented, impoverishing many nobles. As a result, a "spitz" formation developed, a wedge of the best knights backed up by a deep column of poorer quality knights, often unable to afford plate armour or good quality horses. The classification encourages deploying the knights 3 ranks deep.

German infantry started to adopt the pike in place of the spear, imitating the Low Countries and Swiss pikemen.
